May Revive Vetoes
State Measures

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's retail merchants have been given a preview of the 1977 legislative session at an imaginative program that brought together winners and losers two days after Tuesday's legislative elections.

Democrats, whose House and Senate majorities became veto proof against GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes, said they planned to revive some of their vetoed bills—including public employee bargaining procedures.

Republicans reiterated their campaign warnings of a state fiscal crisis and hinted they are not envious of their adversaries' facing a possible tax increase.

In polite "mini" debate Thursday at the annual meeting of the Ohio Council of Retail Merchants were Senate Majority Leader Olive Ocasek, D-27 Akron; House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston; Senate Minority Leader Michael J. Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, and House Republican Leader Charles F. Kurfess, R-83 Perrysburg.

All face re-election to their leadership posts at party caucuses—House Democrats will hold theirs Thursday—but none has been challenged so far.

Ocasek made it clear he wants to revive not only the Rhodes-rejected collective bargaining bill, the governor's biggest victory over labor-oriented Democrats in 1975, but also some vetoed consumer bills.

Named specifically were measures that require individual price marking in retail stores switching to non-decipherable, computer price labels, and the "mechanics lien" bill which seeks to protect homeowners from

Ford Committee
Has Rummage Sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — They're selling the furniture at the President Ford Committee. Half price.

Handsome desks of chrome and walnut. Chairs with casters. Filing cabinets that once contained the plans for keeping the Ford lease on the White House.

The plans failed, of course, and the lease was not renewed. So Ford's campaign committee is shutting up shop, at least.

Until that moment early Wednesday when Mississippi and Wisconsin joined the Carter clique of states, the office was filled not just with furniture but also with optimism. The furniture remains.

In the next few days, the campaign staff of 700 paid workers and hundreds of volunteers will get a letter signed by Ford. "Although ours was not a victory in fact, it was a victory in spirit," it will say. "Together we brought to the American people a new enthusiasm and confidence which had not been seen in the past few years."

A draft copy of the letter contained a heading that it was to be used "if

Quickie Tax
Cut Pondered
By Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter says there is a strong possibility he will seek a tax cut for average wage earners as one way of stimulating the economy if it does not pick up by Jan. 20, when Carter will take the oath of office.

Such a tax cut, Carter said Thursday night, "could be a strong possibility if there is no change in the rate of growth of the economy and if economic indicators should show a negative aspect."

One of those economic indicators, the October unemployment rate, is due out today.

The 7.8 per cent unemployment rate for September was the same that was recorded in July. The September rate represented an improvement from the 7.9 per cent in August.

Other recent economic reports show an economic slowdown.

Industrial production was flat in September. Based on the third consecutive monthly drop in new orders for that sector in that month, the prospect of any sizable jump in production for October is dim.

The slowdown has already been reflected in an increase in the layoff rate in manufacturing last month.

An optimistic job-related report came Thursday from McGraw-Hill Inc.'s 23rd annual survey of capital spending. The survey showed that businesses are planning to spend 13 per cent more on capital goods next year than they did this year, largely because of expansion plans deferred this year.

Such an increase would help the employment picture because of the new jobs created by expansions.

However, inflation is expected to account for possibly 50 per cent or more of the increase, even though businesses say the inflation rate next year is expected to be 1 or 2 per cent lower than 1976's rate.

unscrupulous contractors.

The Akron lawmaker also hinted of another go at a bill that requires statewide registration of voters and permits registration by post card. Rhodes deplored that measure for reasons that became obvious Tuesday when many normally nonvoting Democrats turned out in masses throughout the state.

Riffe said he wasn't ready to discuss specific legislation, pending his own bid for another term as speaker. But at a later news conference, he predicted the re-emergence of the collective bargaining bill. He brushed aside an earlier jibe from Kurfess that Democrats face the prospect of a tax increase, saying it would be up to Rhodes to give the legislature a balanced budget.

Ocasek disputed Kurfess' claim there is a current seven per cent deficit in Ohio's general fund. He said the state had a $64 million balance in its general fund at the start of the fiscal year July 1. Republicans said the money is committed and thus not a "balance."

The two Democrats pledged to deal responsibly with fiscal matters, but acknowledged that decisions have to be made whether to continue services at present levels. It is "a question of where we go from here with services and needs of the people of Ohio," Ocasek said.

Maloney, a member of the Senate since 1964, called the state's economy and the energy shortage the biggest problems. He said the majority leaders have "done nothing" in those fields. He said bills spelling out an energy policy for the state have been pending for 18 months and "haven't had a serious hearing."

Ocasek made it clear he wants to revive not only the Rhodes-rejected collective bargaining bill, the governor's biggest victory over labor-oriented Democrats in 1975, but also some vetoed consumer bills.

Named specifically were measures that require individual price marking in retail stores switching to non-decipherable, computer price labels, and the "mechanics lien" bill which seeks to protect homeowners from defeated." Presumably there was another that would have been used if only two electoral vote-heavy states had gone the other way.

Only a few days ago, Bill Russo was one of the key strategists of President Ford's election campaign. Now he's helping some of his colleagues find jobs and thinking about getting onto the golf course.

Jim Cochran is director of administration of the President Ford Committee. His immediate concern is disposing of more than $150,000 worth of office furniture.

It won't be much of a problem, he says. It's being offered first to the staff. Law firms have made inquiries. In the end, it will be available for public sale.

At the end of the campaign, the Ford committee occupied floors 2, 5, 7 and 10 of a fancy downtown building, with an equally fancy $17,000 a month rent coming out of the $21.8 million in campaign funds the government gave to both the President and Carter.

With the new campaign finance law, the election is not the end of the committee. That red tape both Ford and Carter flayed during the campaign wraps up up their election effort as well.

As a result, the Ford committee won't go out of existence until some time next year. The Federal Election Commission won't even audit the primary campaign expense sheets until January; the general election much later. A lot of bills aren't in yet.

The committee staff is busy shrinking its quarters from 25, 000 feet of space to 2,000 feet.

"We foresee the accounting staff going strong until the end of March," Cochran said. By Nov. 15, however, only the legal and accounting staffs will be left.

Jack Ford Sees
Father Busy

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Ford says he expects his father to be more active than most former presidents when the family leaves the White House.

"He knows there will be a lot of flexibility, ways that he can remain active," the 24-year-old son of President Ford said in an interview in today's New York Daily News. "But the first thing he'll make certain is that mother will be comfortable with it — that it's something she would like to do."

"For the better part of the first year, they'll devote the time to doing all the things they wanted to do before but never had the time for. Dad will enjoy traveling to places — like Mexico — where he always wanted to go with mother, as tourists."

"He'd like to teach at a university if it could be on the basis of about one month a year," Ford added.

Carter Sets Course

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter, who won the White House by only 27 electoral votes, vows that the slimness of victories will not halt his plans to aggressively pursue new goals for the nation.

The Democratic president-elect spoke on the main street of his little hometown of Plains, Ga., on Thursday night, and a crowd of some 400 watched in the chill autumn air as reporters, seated on metal chairs in the middle of the street, asked questions of the president-designate at the town's old railroad station.

It was also Thursday, two days after the election, that the final two states completed tabulating their ballots.

Carter won the presidency with 272 electoral votes in the wee hours of Wednesday. The final accounting on Thursday gave him the 25 electoral votes from Ohio for a total of 297. It took 270 to win.

President Ford, the loser, got 241 electoral votes with the six votes from Oregon completing his tally Thursday night.

Carter took 40,291,626 votes or 51 per cent and Ford received 38,563,089 votes or 48 per cent.

"I wish we could have carried all 50 states, but since I didn't, I hope to demonstrate even before my inauguration my complete commitment to being president of all the American people," Carter said, holding his first nationally broadcast news conference since the election.

The news conference, he said, will be the first of many. He said he hopes to hold at least two each month after taking office in January.

He said the narrow win would not stop him from "moving aggressively to carry out my campaign commitments." And he said there is a strong possibility he will seek a tax cut for average wage earners as one way of stimulating the economy if it does not pick up on its own by Jan. 20, when Carter will take the oath of office.

He said any such tax cut would be designed to increase the purchasing power of the average American family and would be oriented toward lower-income workers.

But the Democrat said he does not intend any interference with the workings of the Ford administration during its final days. In fact, Carter said after the news conference that he will spend less time in Washington than had been expected before the Jan. 20 inauguration.

Earlier, Carter had indicated he would spend several days a week in the capital in transitional offices. But Thursday, he said he would spend less time in Washington to avoid the suggestion that he is trying to interfere with or second guess the last Ford administration decisions.

Carter said he would be represented in Washington by Mondale, who sat silently listening during the news conference in Plains. "Mondale will be there," Carter said. "He will be me."

As for the plans of his own administration, Carter admitted there would be difficulties in carrying out his goals. But he said he thinks his promises can be fulfilled, especially since he will be working with a Democratic Congress.

He mentioned hopes for overhauling the federal bureaucracy, for welfare and tax reform and for a new and comprehensive energy policy.

He said the narrow victory in the popular vote and the electoral college win gives him a mandate sufficient to tackle the tasks he wants. "We had a

Fed Chief, Carter May Clash

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of Jimmy Carter's biggest stumbling blocks in shaping economic policy next year is likely to be the Federal Reserve Board and its strong-willed chairman, 72-year-old Arthur F. Burns.

Carter and Burns have sharply different views on inflation and unemployment, and which is worse for the country. Carter also wants changes in the Fed's operations and the status of its chairman.

Through its control of the American monetary system, the Fed influences interest rates and the money supply. Carter says he wants the Fed to wield that influence to speed up the economy and reduce unemployment. This can be done without adding to inflation, the president-elect says.

But people who know Burns say he remains convinced that inflation is the chief threat to the nation's economy, and they say it is highly unlikely he would suddenly switch signals just to suit Carter.

Carter can't remove Burns, because Burns' term as chairman doesn't expire until Jan. 31, 1978. A source close to Burns said there is almost no chance Burns will step down early.

None of the terms of the other six members of the board will expire until 1978 either, so Carter will be unable to change the makeup of the Fed unless there is an early resignation.

Burns' first public reaction to the election and what it means for the Fed probably will come when he appears before the Senate Banking Committee on Nov. 11 to disclose the Fed's latest money supply growth targets.

As of Thursday, there had not yet been any contact between Burns and the president-elect.

Carter announced Thursday night he may consider a tax cut to stimulate the economy when he takes office in January. Burns opposed President Ford's 1975 tax reductions and proposals, by some members of Congress of offsetting the cuts by withdrawing money from the economy.

Burns denied to Congress he had done that, but it was nevertheless true that money policies remained tight, which could have negated the effect of the tax cuts.

The Federal Reserve Board acts to influence the money supply and interest rates by putting money into the economy, or taking it out, through the purchase or sale of government securities. Actual targets for interest rates and the money supply are set by the Federal Open Market Committee, which is dominated by the board and its chairman.

People such as AFL-CIO President George Meany and Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., say the unchallenged power over money and interest rates makes the Fed chairman the most powerful person in the country.

Carter's best hope for winning changes appears to rest with the next Congress, which will consider new regulations for the Fed as part of the proposed Humphrey-Hawkins jobs bill.

The bill would change the term of the Fed chairman to the same four-year period as the president. This would eliminate the overlap of terms that will occur with Burns and Carter.

Judge Throws Out 'Family Hour'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Television viewers should expect no immediate changes in early evening programs as a result of a federal court decision against the networks' "family hour" viewing policy.

U.S. District Court Judge Warren J. Ferguson ruled Thursday that the major TV networks violated constitutional rights of free speech in adopting the policy last year.

Ferguson did not, however, abolish "family hour" programming, which was designed to calm public protest by keeping sex and violence from early-evening television likely to be watched by children.

He merely said NBC, CBS and ABC couldn't delegate authority for setting the policy to the National Association of Broadcasters (NAB).

The decision was hailed a victory for free speech by the three entertainment guilds, two production companies and nine situation-comedy makers that had filed a lawsuit in October 1975.

"Americans everywhere won a victory today," said producer Norman Lear, creator of "All in the Family" and other hit comedy series.

CBS and ABC said they would appeal Ferguson's decision. NBC and the NAB said they would review the decision before commenting.

CBS, which led the fight for the industry's adoption of the policy, said, "In the meantime and until further notice, CBS will voluntarily continue to adhere to the family viewing concept."

The NAB adopted the policy in September 1975 after network officials held a closed meeting with Federal Communications Commission Chairman Richard E. Wiley. The networks and 462 television stations now subscribe to the policy.

In Ferguson's 223-page opinion, the judge also held that the FCC violated the First Amendment "by issuing threats of government action" through

Wiley "should (the) industry not adopt the family viewing policy or the equivalent...." He said "censorship by government or privately created review boards cannot be tolerated."

Ferguson ruled that the NAB and networks were liable for any damages that Lear's production company suffered from the policy. No date has been scheduled to consider damages and a contention by the unions that the "family hour" policy violated federal antitrust laws.

The policy says entertainment programs "inappropriate for viewing by a general family audience" shouldn't be aired at night during the first hour of network programming or in the preceding hour. The policy does not specify what constitutes inappropriate programming.

Ferguson, in criticizing the networks for bending to what he called FCC threats, said it was their right and duty to make independent decisions. "Instead of doing so, they took the easy road and capitulated to FCC pressure," he said.

Robert Aldrich, president of the Directors Guild, which was a plaintiff in the case, said his guild would ask for Wiley's resignation from the FCC.

Wiley repeated in Washington, D.C., what he had testified in court — that he never pressured the networks to adopt "family viewing."

Wiley "should (the) industry not adopt the family viewing policy or the equivalent...." He said "censorship by government or privately created review boards cannot be tolerated."

Ferguson ruled that the NAB and networks were liable for any damages that Lear's production company suffered from the policy. No date has been scheduled to consider damages and a contention by the unions that the "family hour" policy violated federal antitrust laws.

The policy says entertainment programs "inappropriate for viewing by a general family audience" shouldn't be aired at night during the first hour of network programming or in the preceding hour. The policy does not specify what constitutes inappropriate programming.

Ferguson, in criticizing the networks for bending to what he called FCC threats, said it was their right and duty to make independent decisions. "Instead of doing so, they took the easy road and capitulated to FCC pressure," he said.

Robert Aldrich, president of the Directors Guild, which was a plaintiff in the case, said his guild would ask for Wiley's resignation from the FCC.

Wiley repeated in Washington, D.C., what he had testified in court — that he never pressured the networks to adopt "family viewing."

CINCINNATI (AP) — Westinghouse Electric Corp. and two insurance companies have won a $1,906,684 civil judgement growing out of a 1968 warehouse fire in which former major league infielder Willie "Puddinghead" Jones was accused of negligence.

Venezuela Taking Over Company

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — The government-ordered purchase of Owens-Illinois glass company holdings in Venezuela reportedly will be negotiated by a three-member arbitration team including former U.S. Undersecretary of State George Ball.

A source who asked not to be identified said Ball was designated to represent Owens-Illinois while Roberto Salas Capriles, a prominent Venezuelan businessman, was appointed to represent the Venezuelan government.

Government and company representatives are studying a list of names to select a third, neutral representative for the team, said the source.

The Venezuelan government last April ordered the purchase of Toledo-based Owens-Illinois' stock by the local glass industry. It charged the company had violated Venezuela's constitution and legal norms in its efforts to meet the demands of kidnappers of one of its executives.

William F. Niehaus, 45, of Toledo, manager of Owens-Illinois' Venezuelan operations, was abducted Feb. 27 from his suburban Caracas residence by seven armed men and is still missing.

The government order for sale of the firm's local holdings came after the company arranged for publication of a strongly worded political manifesto from the kidnappers in the New York Times, the Times of London and Le Monde of Paris.

Italian City Fears Damaging Flood

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — Ten years ago, the Arno river flooded this treasure house of the Italian Renaissance, killed more than 50 people and damaged thousands of works of art.

But after 10 years of talk, "not one thing has been done to control the Arno and prevent it all from happening again," said Elio Gabbuggiani, the Communist mayor of Florence in an interview.

The memories of Nov. 4, 1966, were accentuated Thursday by heavy rains that caused floods from Venice down to farmlands south of Naples. But the Arno stayed well within its banks, and damage elsewhere was limited to a small number of homes and crops.

In 1966, 113 persons were killed and countless millions in damage were caused by floods over large parts of the Italian peninsula.

Florence caused the most concern, because about half of the deaths were in this area and art treasures representing a whole era of history were threatened.

Art restoration experts have been working ever since on the estimated 1,200 paintings and thousands of centuries-old illuminated books and manuscripts that were damaged by the waters. Authorities say the job is about half complete.

The most celebrated victim of the flood, a 13th Century crucifix by Giovanni Cimabue, was submerged for days and lost major portions of its paint. What is left is almost ready for public viewing again.

Since the flood, there have been plenty of ideas about how to control the Arno: dredge the river bed, reconstruct the bases of the city's bridges to prevent debris from damming up around them, dig artificial lakes to drain off any overflow. But nothing has been done.

The regional government recently launched a new study of the problem. Gabbuggiani, who became Florence's first Communist mayor in mid-1975, accuses the national Christian Democratic governments of virtually leaving the city to its own resources after the flood. But he says part of the problem is years of mismanagement by the Christian Democrats in the city government.

Only the Christian Democrats and the neo-fascists voted against his Florence Project for urban renewal, he said, while the Republicans and Social Democrats abstained with positive comments on the plan although they are officially members of the opposition.

The project aims to revitalize the artisan backbone of the city's economy, restore the central city without destroying its historical authenticity and put development on a basis of orderly planning.

Venezuela Taking Over Company

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — The government-ordered purchase of Owens-Illinois glass company holdings in Venezuela reportedly will be negotiated by a three-member arbitration team including former U.S. Undersecretary of State George Ball.

A source who asked not to be identified said Ball was designated to represent Owens-Illinois while Roberto Salas Capriles, a prominent Venezuelan businessman, was appointed to represent the Venezuelan government.

Government and company representatives are studying a list of names to select a third, neutral representative for the team, said the source.

The Venezuelan government last April ordered the purchase of Toledo-based Owens-Illinois' stock by the local glass industry. It charged the company had violated Venezuela's constitution and legal norms in its efforts to meet the demands of kidnapers of one of its executives.

William F. Niehaus, 45, of Toledo, manager of Owens-Illinois' Venezuelan operations, was abducted Feb. 27 from his suburban Caracas residence by seven armed men and is still missing.

The government order for sale of the firm's local holdings came after the company arranged for publication of a strongly worded political manifesto from the kidnapers in the New York Times, the Times of London and Le Monde of Paris.

'Gone With The Wind' Won't Die

LOS ANGELES (AP) — What can you say about a 37-year-old movie that refuses to die?

That it's the greatest epic film ever made. That it's one of the most acclaimed pictures of all time. That more than 150 million people worldwide have seen it — many again and again.

That NBC paid an estimated $10 million — the highest price ever for a movie — to televise it Sunday and Monday nights.

The movie is, of course, "Gone with the Wind," adapted from Margaret Mitchell's sweeping novel of the Civil War.

Outside of a showing on the Home Box Office cable service this summer, "Gone with the Wind" has never been seen on television. It is the last major motion picture made before 1970 to make it to the small screen.

"Gone with the Wind" has already been seen in theaters by more people than any other movie — and NBC believes it will draw the biggest audience ever for a movie on television. It estimates 110 million people will tune in. The most widely viewed movie to date on TV was "Ben-Hur," which attracted 86 million people in 1971 on CBS.

If NBC's audience estimate is correct, it will be well worth the $10 million it paid. It would knock NBC through the roof in the ratings for two weeks — since the Sunday part would be in one ratings week and the Monday part would start the next week.

The first part, running three hours, will be shown Sunday night and the second part, running two hours, will be on Monday. Times for the telecasts will vary across the country and viewers should consult local listings.

Look for some changes in the CBS comedy lineup this Saturday. "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" and "The Bob Newhart Show" move up an hour to replace "The Jeffersons" (which moves to Wednesday) and "Doc" (which was canceled).

"All in the Family" and "Alice" move in behind Moore and Newhart to cement the comedy block, with Carol Burnett at 10 p.m. EST. This is the fourth move for Archie Bunker, who returns to the night on which "All in the Family" first became a hit.

MOVIES: ABC Friday Night Movie, "Nightmare in Badham County," with Deborah Raffin and Lynne Moody as students who land in a backwoods jail. CBS Friday Night Movie, "Play It Again, Sam," stars Woody Allen as a would-be lover who seeks advice from Humphrey Bogart. NBC Saturday Night at the Movies, "The Day of the Dolphin," stars George C. Scott as a scientist whose research dolphins figure in a presidential assassination plot. ABC Sunday Night Movie, "Twenty-One Hours at Munich," William Holden and Shirley Knight in a dramatized made-for-TV film about the Palestinian terrorist attack on Israeli Olympic athletes in 1972.

Teacher Saves Life Of Student

CINCINNATI (AP) — Teacher Mrs. Reggie Reynolds is being hailed as a heroine for the second time at Bond Hill School.

The second grade teacher led the evacuation of the school in 1974 when a faulty heating system filled the school with carbon monoxide which overcame many children.

This week she saved a pupil, Anjeanette Williams, from choking on a candy bar she gulped fearing she would be punished for eating during class.

"Anjeanette began walking toward me and she couldn't talk," said Mrs.

Reynolds. Her first impulse was to rush the child to the principal's office but then remembered the Heimlich Method.

She was able to dislodge the candy by wrapping the child in a bear hug from behind and squeezing below the rib cage.

The method, now widely used, was pioneered by Dr. Henry Heimlich, chief of surgery at Cincinnati General Hospital.

Mrs. Reynolds learned the method at a Cub Scout meeting.

"I don't know what would have happened if somebody hadn't said something," Mrs. Reynolds said. Anjeanette's plight was pointed out by other students.

"But I was glad I was there to help."

Veterans Questions Answered

EDITOR'S NOTE: each week the Circleville Herald will publish a series of questions and answers of interest to veterans. These questions and answers are some of the many presented to James P. Shea, Pickaway County Veterans Service Officer. Any veteran desiring further information concerning his Veterans Administration benefits should contact the Veterans Service Officer, at 219 South Court Street.

(Q.) I just received my VA check in the mail today. There is a card that says Veterans Pension Questionnaire, in the envelope too. Should I complete this and mail it back in the envelope that was enclosed?

(A.) Absolutely Not. Please bring the form, an Income Questionnaire, to your Veterans Service Officer, at 219 South Court Street and let us complete this form for you. You can't realize how easy it is to complete these forms improperly, and then your pension can stop, until the error is corrected. Incidentally, these questionnaires must be completed by mid-December, so please don't delay getting them completed.

(Q.) I am the widow of a World War II veteran who died as a result of a service connected injury before using his GI home loan entitlement. I have not remarried. Am I eligible for this Veterans Administration benefit?

(A.) Yes. If they are not currently married, widows of veterans of World War II and later periods who died of Service Connected causes, as well as wives of servicemen missing in action or prisoners of war for more than 90 days are eligible for this benefit.

(Q.) If a veteran has a service connected disability and this qualifies for a 10-point preference in Civil Service employment, may his wife also get such preference for similar employment?

(A.) No. Although wives of certain disabled veterans are entitled to 10-point preference when, because of disability, the veteran cannot be appointed to a Civil Service job in his usual line of work, both he and his wife cannot, at the same time, receive the 10-point preference.

(Q.) My husband is a World War II veteran who added the Total Disability Income rider to his National Service Life Insurance policy. He has been totally disabled for about five years and has received $100 a month for all that time. How will that affect the face value of his basic policy?

(A.) It will have no effect. Benefits received under the disability rider will not decrease the face value of the NSLI policy.

(Q.) I have always received the Veterans Annual Income Questionnaire in the mail the 1st of November with my check. This year, there was no questionnaire. Are they going to cut off my Pension?

(A.) If there was no Income Questionnaire in the envelope with your VA Pension check, then I will presume that you are 72 years of age. It is no longer necessary to complete this form every year. You will have no more questionnaires to complete at all, but your checks will continue to come each month.

Roger Miller Fired By Hotel

DALLAS (AP) — The general manager of the Fairmont Hotel has fired singer-composer Roger Miller in the middle of a two-week engagement at the hotel's Venetian Room.

Julian Abio said Thursday that Miller's performance had not been "up to expectations." He declined further comment.

It was the first time in the room's history that a performer was fired in the middle of an engagement.

Abio said singer Marilyn Maye would open at the hotel today to replace Miller.

Miller has had several hit records, including "King of the Road" and "Dang Me." He also had a short-lived network television show.

A Page Of Opinion

Learning The Ropes

College professors, as with people in other walks of life, come from diverse backgrounds. Some have practical experience in the subjects they teach, others do not.

George Kirkham is a Florida State University professor who thought he knew his specialty — criminology — thoroughly, but now admits he did not really know it at all until he began to moonlight — as a cop.

Egged on by students and a local sheriff, Kirkham became a Tallahassee policeman. In a book he has written about his experiences, the professor candidly admits he entered the police profession filled with biased stereotypes about the kind of person who does police work.

One of his first surprises, he said, was to discover that cops like to talk about their families. As he gained experience more of his stereotypes fell and his respect for men and women in uniform grew.

Kirkham says his exercise in practical training has not met with universal approval from his academic peers. Those who prefer to dwell in ivory towers unencumbered by the real world may see a challenge in George Kirkham they would prefer to ignore.

Class And Toots

By JIM BISHOP

Once upon a time, dear child, there was a place called Broadway. It was a crooked street in a crooked city with straight arrow crooks. It is gone now, long gone, but once it was an avenue of brazen lights and night clubs and characters such as you would not believe.

One remains. No one knows why. He is Toots Shor and he sits on a tall stool before the doorway of a restaurant at 1 Pennsylvania Plaza and says "hello." He will hello anybody because he must make a buck and the provincials desire to say hello to the last of the Broadways.

When Broadway was Broadway, Mr. Shor was nothing. He was a big kid out of South Philadelphia who earned 50 a week as a bouncer for three speakeasies. He knew Frank Costello and Justice Frank Murphy, and Mark Hellinger, and Frenchy DeMange and Tommy Noonan and Cardinal Spellman and all the sports figures in the world.

If you know not what class is, you do not comprehend. Class was everything. When Noonan went to the can, Mr. Shor hired a Carey Cadillac every Saturday and drove 190 miles to a Pennsylvania penitentiary to bring Mr. Noonan a basket of fruit, a boiled ham and roast beef.

When Toots opened a restaurant, he employed a character as purchasing agent who stole $300 a week. Mr. Shor refused to fire him because he was a relative of a good friend. This too is class. One time Cardinal Spellman had a formal dinner for friends. He invited Shor, the Jew, to sit on his right because, he said, he wanted to discuss baseball.

Broadway and class are difficult to define. The first is a state of mind, the second is expensive insanity. When Shor opened his first restaurant - all three were disasters - he had a maitre d' and three captains who showed suckers to their tables.

When the jerk closed at 3 a.m., the quartet was irritated that Toots did not offer them a drink. In anger, they took a cab to Floyd Bennett Field, where, it so happened, a boozery was still open. When it closed, they took a plane to Chicago, where, it was rumored, there was a place which served drinks around the clock.

They drank for three days. When they returned, they put on their dinner jackets, their black bow ties, and showed people to proper tables. Toots watched. It went on for a half-hour. Then the captain of waiters begged, "Toots! Say something to us! Say anything."

Shor scowled. "I'll say something. Why the hell didn't you guys take me with you?" Class. Another time, Bob Considine was at the bar with a group of book writers. He twirled his drink in its stain and murmured, "Jim Bishop is in the Middle East. He has another bestseller."

Toots, who couldn't get through a comic book without a crayon, said,

"Howdy know?" "Because," said Considine, "he is researching a book called 'The Day Christ Died' and he has just discovered that Jesus had a dog."

Broadway was Ziegfeld and Earl Carroll and A. H. Woods and B. A. Rolfe and La Vie en Rose and the Copacabana and Joe E. Lewis and Ethel Merman and Larry Fay and Helen Morgan and Richard Bennett and a lot of people of whom you and I never heard.

Two of the better drinkers were Jimmy Cannon, a sports writer, and Jackie Gleason, a towering talent. They challenged each other in drinking bouts at Shor's and, drink for drink, Gleason won. One time Gleason challenged Cannon when the sports writer had just completed having a half of his stomach removed.

Happy-go-lucky Gleason was on pure booze. Cannon was on creamed spinach. It was no contest. Jackie

Dispute Over Fair Dates Continues

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State Fair officials, hoping to reverse this year's sagging attendance caused by school starting earlier, may have created more problems by opening next year's fair 10 days earlier.

County fair managers say the state is being unfair with them.

The Ohio Expositions Commission, which runs the state fair, moved the 1977 opening ahead and extended the run from 12 to 13 days.

With a shortened county fair season and dozens of local fairs, it's a scheduler's nightmare.

"There are 96 fairs in the state of Ohio and when one of them changes the date, it affects us all," said Merrill Cowgill of Marengo, executive secretary of the Ohio Fair Managers Association (OFMA).

"We pleaded with them to give us a year to make the adjustments but they turned a deaf ear," he said.

Ray L. Boone of Bellfontaine, manager of the Logan County Fair, was more blunt: "We're sold down the river."

He explained that "on local fairs, it's impossible to change their dates without a lot of preplanning. We have a lot of legal contracts signed. Probably 90 per cent of the contracts are signed before the previous fair is over."

The OFMA has recommended that all fairs request their traditional dates for 1977 and let the state agriculture director decide on preferences. The association also has asked the expositions commission to delay state fair date changes until 1978.

John F. Evans, state fair general manager, said he doubts the expositions commission will reconsider. "There wasn't any thought of changing back," he said.

Evans looks at the situation from a different perspective than the county managers.

"We're also competing with other state fairs," he said. "We have as much at stake as the county fairs. We're in direct conflict with Kentucky and Indiana."

Is there an answer to the scheduling conflict?

"You're always going to have a conflict...because of the short season the fairs are held," Evans said.

"Our big thought," he said, "is that we have 30,000 young people who are part of the state fair and with schools opening before Labor Day it affected attendance...and caused a burden."

Boone estimated that 90 per cent of the fairs would be affected by the state fair's date change, but he said it won't hurt the county fairs.

"I don't think that the state fair is any competition for us and never will be," Boone said.

It will hurt exhibitors, he said, because they will have to decide whether they will set up at county fairs or the state fair; often they can't do both when the dates are so close.

Toots is the last. And the best . . .

positions commission will reconsider. "There wasn't any thought of changing back," he said.

Evans looks at the situation from a different perspective than the county managers.

"We're also competing with other state fairs," he said. "We have as much at stake as the county fairs. We're in direct conflict with Kentucky and Indiana."

Is there an answer to the scheduling conflict?

"You're always going to have a conflict...because of the short season the fairs are held," Evans said.

"Our big thought," he said, "is that we have 30,000 young people who are part of the state fair and with schools opening before Labor Day it affected attendance...and caused a burden."

Solons Get Gun Money

BELLEVUE, Wash. (AP) — Individual contributions of as much as $1,000 were made to 150 pro-gun incumbent congressional candidates in 35 states in the 1976 campaign, a nationwide gun owners group says.

Alan Gottlieb, director of the Citizen's Committee for the Right to Keep and Bear Arms, said Wednesday his group, based here, contributed about $80,000 to congressional candidates who are opposed to restrictive gun control laws, but didn't bother handing out dollars in this state.

"We had some heavy input in Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania. And, of course, in California."

Gottlieb said opponents of new gun control laws constitute "the seventh largest political lobby," behind oil companies and several labor unions.

Another pro-gun organization, the Gun Owners of America Campaign Committee of Sacramento, has contributed almost $100,000 to candidates for Congress, Gottlieb said.

The copious consumption of intoxicants in early Ohio, according to the Ohio Historical Society, was not confined to any group or class. It reported that at Granville in Licking County there were six distilleries and the 1,700 people in the township consumed 10,000 gallons of whisky annually. Farmers usually took a load of corn to the distillery and received a barrel of liquor in exchange.—AP

Sick Leave Pay Change Studied

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The State Employee Compensation Board says it may begin charging the first day of a state worker's sick leave against his pay.

The board began discussion of the issue on Wednesday, but no action was taken. State personnel chief Philip S. Hamilton said charging the first day of sick leave as an absence "would cut down 50 to 75 per cent" on the high number of sick days now taken.

Sen. Harry Meshel, D-33 Youngstown, suggested employees who do not take any sick leave during a year be paid a bonus. But he added the bonus would have to be substantial for the plan to work.

The board also discussed hiking the $1,200 annual fee state universities pay the Department of Administrative Services for personnel administration. Hamilton said universities handle their payrolls, but use the department for development of civil service examinations for examinations and testing. Hamilton said development of one test costs more than $1,200.

"How come you never talk to me like that?"

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Both my mother and I have varicose veins of the legs. Is this a coincidence?
Mrs. B. U., Mont.

Dear Mrs. U.:

There are two types of varicose veins. The first ("primary") may be related to some weakness in the walls of the veins, or to some impairment of the valves that lie within them. It is estimated that about 50 per cent of the patients with this weakness in the veins have some hereditary predisposition.

The second type of varicose veins ("secondary") may be due to inflammation of the vein itself. These are less frequently hereditary in origin. Pregnancy, posture, overweight, hormonal changes or pressures within the pelvis may play a role in the production of secondary varicosities.

There are now many exact tests that can determine the nature of the varicose veins, their causes and their extent. After these have been done, the best method of treatment is chosen.

I've been trying to trace my background. It seems there's a possibility that my ancestry goes back to the American Indian. Can this be scientifically proven by a physical examination or by studies of the blood?

Mr. A. U. M., Nev.

Dear Mr. M.:

There are no blood tests, chemical studies or X-rays that can shed light on the ancestry of anyone.

Some anthropologists believe that the configuration of bones and the character of hair may be significant. I would not put much faith, however, in the speculation that any such findings will accurately give you the answer you seek.

Can an intolerable itching be caused by taking an antibiotic?

Dear Miss E.:

Itching of the skin is, in reality, a form of pain. It passes through the nerves in the same way as pain sensations. Itching can be even more distressing than actual pain.

Antibiotics can, indeed, cause a skin reaction in people who are sensitive to them. It's interesting, too, that people who may have taken a drug or an antibiotic without a previous reaction may later develop a sensitivity to the same drug or antibiotic.

Eating At Home Cheaper This Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eat at home if you want to save money on food, says a new Agriculture Department look at the nation's food market.

For all of 1976, the department's Outlook and Situation Board says, prices for meals and snacks in restaurants and fast-food outlets will average about 7 per cent higher than the 1975 average.

At the same time, prices of store-bought food for eating at home should come out about 2.5 per cent higher, it said.

Labor and utility cost increases are the principal culprits in both cases, officials said, noting that the farm value of foods produced on U.S. farms is expected to average 4 per cent below last year's average.

Constantly rising prices for coffee, an imported food, throw the scales off a bit, but the board said:

"Increases in retail food prices this year mainly reflect wider farm-to-retail spreads as well as the sharply higher prices for coffee and fishery products."

The USDA forecasters made no changes in this latest report in their main prediction: an over-all 1976 average increase in retail food prices of 3 per cent, including levels in these closing months only 1 or 2 per cent above late-1975 levels.

Next year, the outlook is still for prices 2 to 4 per cent above the January-June 1976 averages.

Large supplies of both crop-derived food supplies and meat are dampening retail price increases, the board said.

The portion of the price attributed to middlemen's costs and profits is expected to average 5 per cent higher this year than last, "well under the increases of the previous two years and a little below the rate of (general) inflation" which has been around 6 per cent.

The increases coming this winter will be due to the coffee situation, higher prices for fresh vegetables "and away-from-home eating," the analysis said.

The improved economy's spurring of consumer demand and the large food supplies are pushing American consumption rates to near the 1972 record, the board added. A 5 per cent rise in the amount of red meat eaten per person and a 9 per cent rise in poultry consumption are primarily responsible.

In the months of July through September, total spending for food at home and away from home rose at about the same pace, the report said.

A Page Of Opinion

Learning The Ropes

College professors, as with people in other walks of life, come from diverse backgrounds. Some have practical experience in the subjects they teach, others do not.

George Kirkham is a Florida State University professor who thought he knew his specialty — criminology — thoroughly, but now admits he did not really know it at all until he began to moonlight —

Once upon a time, dear child, there was a place called Broadway. It was a crooked street in a crooked city with straight arrow crooks. It is gone now, long gone, but once it was an avenue of brazen lights and night clubs and characters such as you would not believe.

One remains. No one knows why. He is Toots Shor and he sits on a tall stool behind the doorway of a restaurant at 1 Pennsylvania Plaza and says "hello." He will hello anybody because he must make a buck and the provincials desire to say hello to the last of the Broadwayites.

When Broadway was Broadway, Mr. Shor was nothing. He was a big kid out of South Philadelphia who earned 50 a week as a bouncer for three speakeasies. He knew Frank Costello and Justice Frank Murphy, and Mark Hellinger, and Frenchy DeMange and Tommy Noonan and Cardinal Spellman and all the sports figures in the world.

If you know not what class is, you do not comprehend. Class was everything. When Noonan went to the can, Mr. Shor hired a Carey Cadillac every Saturday and drove 190 miles to a Pennsylvania penitentiary to bring Mr. Noonan a basket of fruit, a boiled ham and roast beef.

When Toots opened a restaurant, he employed a character as purchasing agent who stole $300 a week. Mr. Shor refused to fire him because he was a relative of a good friend. This too is class. One time Cardinal Spellman had a formal dinner for friends. He invited Shor, the Jew, to sit on his right because, he said, he wanted to discuss baseball.

Broadway and class are difficult to define. The first is a state of mind, the second is expensive insanity. When Shor opened his first restaurant - all three were disasters - he had a maitre d' and three captains who showed suckers to their tables.

When the jernit closed at 3 a.m., the quartet was irritated that Toots did not offer them a drink. In anger, they took a cab to Floyd Bennett Field, where, it so happened, a boozery was still open. When it closed, they took a plane to Chicago, where, it was rumored, there was a place which served drinks around the clock.

They drank for three days. When they returned, they put on their dinner jackets, their black bow ties, and showed people to proper tables. Toots watched. It went on for a half-hour. Then the captain of waiters begged, "Toots! Say something to us! Say anything."

Shor scowled. "I'll say something. Why the hell didn't you guys take me with you?" Class. Another time, Bob Considine was at the bar with a group of book writers. He twirled his drink in its stain and murmured, "Jim Bishop is in the Middle East. He has another bestseller."

Toots, who couldn't get through a comic book without a crayon, said,

as a cop.

Egged on by students and a local sheriff, Kirkham became a Tallahassee policeman. In a book he has written about his experiences, the professor candidly admits he entered the police profession filled with biased stereotypes about the kind of person who does police work.

One of his first surprises, he said, was to discover that cops like to talk about their families. As he gained experience more of his stereotypes fell and his respect for men and women in uniform grew.

Kirkham says his exercise in practical training has not met with universal approval from his academic peers. Those who prefer to dwell in ivory towers unencumbered by the real world may see a challenge in George Kirkham they would prefer to ignore.

Class And Toots

By JIM BISHOP

"Howdy know?" "Because," said Considine, "he is researching a book called 'The Day Christ Died' and he has just discovered that Jesus had a dog."

Broadway was Ziegfeld and Earl Carroll and A. H. Woods and B. A. Rolfe and La Vie en Rose and the Copacabana and Joe E. Lewis and Ethel Merman and Larry Fay and Helen Morgan and Richard Bennett and a lot of people of whom you and I never heard.

Two of the better drinkers were Jimmy Cannon, a sports writer, and Jackie Gleason, a towering talent. They challenged each other in drinking bouts at Shor's and, drink for drink, Gleason won. One time Gleason challenged Cannon when the sports writer had just completed having a half of his stomach removed.

Happy-go-lucky Gleason was on pure booze. Cannon was on creamed spinach. It was no contest. Jackie drank a bottle and a half. Cannon forked his spinach, masticating slowly, painfully.

When Gleason arose to go to the men's room, or whatever they call those absurd places where gentlemen stand up for their rights, he walked with dignity until he reached the archway. Then he fell on his face.

The maitre d' reached down. "Don't touch him," Cannon said with soft venom. "Let the soandso stay where he is." Let it be said that the maitre d' also had class. He assisted customers, ladies and gentlemen, across Mr. Gleason's stout body to their tables.

It was a time. An era. A day. It is gone. Dead. Departed. Deceased. I felt an impulse to tell you. If you want a touch of old Broadway, the crooked street with the bright lights, go to Toots Shor's place. Tell him in words of one syllable that you want him to sit at your table and tell you what it was like in the good old days.

Toots is the last. And the best...

Dispute Over Fair Dates Continues

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State Fair officials, hoping to reverse this year's sagging attendance caused by school starting earlier, may have created more problems by opening next year's fair 10 days earlier.

County fair managers say the state is being unfair with them.

The Ohio Expositions Commission, which runs the state fair, moved the 1977 opening ahead and extended the run from 12 to 13 days.

With a shortened county fair season and dozens of local fairs, it's a scheduler's nightmare.

"There are 96 fairs in the state of Ohio and when one of them changes the date, it affects us all," said Merrill Cowgill of Marengo, executive secretary of the Ohio Fair Managers Association (OFMA).

"We pleaded with them to give us a year to make the adjustments but they turned a deaf ear," he said.

Ray L. Boone of Belfontaine, manager of the Logan County Fair, was more blunt: "We're sold down the river."

He explained that "on local fairs, it's impossible to change their dates without a lot of preplanning. We have a lot of legal contracts signed. Probably 90 per cent of the contracts are signed before the previous fair is over."

The OFMA has recommended that all fairs request their traditional dates for 1977 and let the state agriculture director decide on preferences. The association also has asked the expositions commission to delay state fair date changes until 1978.

John F. Evans, state fair general manager, said he doubts the expositions commission will reconsider. "There wasn't any thought of changing back," he said.

Evans looks at the situation from a different perspective than the county managers.

"We're also competing with other state fairs," he said. "We have as much at stake as the county fairs. We're in direct conflict with Kentucky and Indiana."

Is there an answer to the scheduling conflict?

"You're always going to have a conflict...because of the short season the fairs are held," Evans said.

"Our big thought," he said, "is that we have 30,000 young people who are part of the state fair and with schools opening before Labor Day it affected attendance...and caused a burden."

Boone estimated that 90 per cent of the fairs would be affected by the state fair's date change, but he said it won't hurt the county fairs.

"I don't think that the state fair is any competition for us and never will be," Boone said.

It will hurt exhibitors, he said, because they will have to decide whether they will set up at county fairs or the state fair; often they can't do both when the dates are so close.

CB Radios Critical Necessity In Alaska

ATIGUN PASS, Alaska (AP) — You start up the 4,800-foot pass in the care of "The Heartbreaker," who turns you over to "The Pass Watcher." Once over the top you are in the hands of "The Happy Pappy."

All three of them drive road graders on the trans-Alaska pipeline haul road. And their rigs are equipped with CB radios, which are much more than a device for "hollering" at friends when you are this far north of the Arctic Circle.

They can make the difference between life and death.

The 359-mile road north of the Yukon River is kept open all year to get supplies to the pipeline construction camps. Roughly 80 per cent of the road lies north of the Arctic Circle, and winter temperatures 60 below zero are common.

"The one and only, world famous Thunderbug" drives this two-lane dirt road like there was no tomorrow as he roars "home to mama." As he stands in front of the shiny Rolls Royce-like grill of his 18-wheeler he looks tough enough to handle most obstacles.

Paul Konig, "the Thunderbug," boasts of going over Atigun Pass "barefoot" (without chains). As he is talking, this reporter's own four-wheel drive wagon is sliding all over the icy highway.

But the Anchorage trucker says, "I won't go up this road without my CB."

His buddy, Marty DeWitt of Fairbanks, or "Tiny Tim," tells a story about hauling a pipeline load on the stretch of statemaintained road south of the Yukon. He was headed up a hill when his rig tumbled over a cliff.

He broke a rib but his radio still worked, and he heard a friend who was traveling ahead of him ask: "Did you make it over the hill?"

"I told him: 'Yeah, but not the right way.'"

Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., the consortium of oil companies building the pipeline, maintains the road north of the Yukon.

The truckers, like their "good buddies" down south, monitor channel 19. But they also can use channel 11 to talk with the 12 pipeline camps along the route.

Each camp has a radio operator handling the commercial band frequency used by Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., as well as monitoring channel 11.

The drivers are never more than 25 miles from a camp, so most of the time they are within the transmission range of CB radios. And if a trucker can't reach the nearest camp, there's usually another trucker closer who can relay a message.

Many Alyeska construction trucks have CB radios and can relay messages to camps via their more powerful company commercial-band radios.

The radio operator in Old Man camp said that hardly a day passes that he doesn't get a request for some kind of assistance, usually from a disabled vehicle.

As we talked with Old Man on channel 19, we passed two wrecked trucks. One was a tanker lying almost upside down but neat-as-you-please on the narrow strip between the road and the forest. There were no injuries in either accident.

Truckers also can call to the radio operators, like "The Winemaker" in Dietrich Camp, to reserve a room for the night. The drivers are allowed to spend the night in the camps and eat in the cafeterias free.

The truckers occasionally get road information from the camps, more often from each other. And there are road condition signs occasionally.

One thing truckers don't need to worry about are bears of the four-wheel variety. Bears — of the four-legged variety — and wolves are seen frequently along the road.

The radios also are crucial to break the loneliness. The truckers, many riding without partners, use them to pass the time. More than one we heard a static-filled and faint plea: "Breaker 19, is there anybody on this here haul road today?"

That goes for the workers, like Ron Lukken of Puyallup, Wash., too. He

Fairfield History Reserved On Tapes At OU-L

The slide-tape history of Fairfield County up to 1850, the bicentennial project of Ohio University-Lancaster Campus, is now in its final stage of production. Copies of the approximate thirty minute recorded program will be available to the general public and area schools in the very near future.

Approximately 150 slides and a thirty minute recorded script make up a program designed for adult audiences as well as for junior and senior high school students of Ohio history. Early white explorers, Indian conflicts, pioneer farms, churches, schools, the canal age, and the lives of famous local personalities are some of the major features of the program.

The project was funded by gifts from Anchor Hocking Corporation, the Lancaster Quota Club, and Circle K (OU-L), and members of the Ohio University-Lancaster faculty, staff, student body, and community members, took part in the research and slide selection. Special thanks goes to Mrs. Ruth Drinkle and others of the Fairfield Heritage Association, Herbert Turner, local historian, Mrs. Rose Ann Kalister, writer and editor of the slide-tape script, and Herb Schumacher, technical producer. Those wanting more information on the project should contact Dr. James A Fannin, of the OU-L History staff, project co-ordinator.

News Of Interest To Women

The Circleville Herald, Friday November 5, 1976

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Tell Her She Can't 'Buy' Silence

DEAR ABBY: I work with a utility crew, and recently, after completing a job on the outskirts of a large city, the foreman took us into a nearby seedy-looking restaurant for a bite to eat.

In this place was a bar, and there seated on a bar stool was my cousin's wife with a couple of characters admiring her knees! When she recognized me, she couldn't have been more embarrassed than I was. We're all in our early 30s and see each other when the family gets together.

Anyway, that night she phoned me in a half-threatening manner and told me to keep my mouth shut! But before she rang off, her tone changed, and she said she'd consider it a favor if I didn't say anything and she would return the favor if I so wished.

What would you do, Abby, if you were a MAN?

ILLINOIS

DEAR ILLINOIS: If I were a man, I'd tell her she didn't owe me any favors, and because I was also a gentleman, she didn't have to tell me to keep my mouth shut.

DEAR ABBY: Seven months ago I lost my first baby. He was only 6 weeks old. It left me heartbroken.

In the last six months, five members of my husband's family have become pregnant, and pregnancies have become the No. 1 topic at all our family gatherings.

I am very happy for those concerned, but it also makes me feel very sad and uncomfortable to sit among five expectant mothers. It brings back so many painful memories I would rather forget. I realize that these conversations weren't meant to depress me, but they do. I have tried hard to overcome my feelings of envy and resentment, but have decided that the best thing to do is just stay away from these family gatherings.

My husband thinks I'm being childish and self-pitying. What do you think? How can I solve my problem?

RAGGEDY ANN
DEAR ANN: Your feelings of envy, resentment and depression are understandable, but only by facing life's disappointments and learning to cope with them will you grow strong enough to overcome them. You may need professional help as you turn the corner. It's worth a try.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my love life. I'm only 16, but I know a lot for my age.

My boyfriend heard a lot of dirty rumors about me at the pool hall and he believes them. Those rumors are not true, but he wouldn't even let me explain.

How can I get him back?

HURT HEART

DEAR HURT: If he believes those dirty rumors, you probably can't.

A little unasked-for advice, honey: A boy who would write you off without giving you a chance to explain isn't worth the heartache. Forget him.

Family Brunch Being Planned By Junior Women

A special committee of Circleville Junior Women's Club met to draw up plans for a Family Brunch to be held on Nov. 20th, 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Grange Building on the fairgrounds. The menu will be pancakes, sausage, and beverage.

The brunch is planned as a kick-off of National Family Week which runs the week of Thanksgiving. This is a time to reflect on the value of strong family ties and the satisfactions of personal and community friendships. Mrs. William Mosher (474-5812) and Mrs. Ed Peters (474-3691) were appointed to be in charge of group reservations. Tickets will be available from members of Circleville Junior Women, Sentry Hardware, and The Gallery on Main St.

The decorations will be interesting wall slogans stressing family relationships and friendship ties. Efforts will be made to help parents of young children with service and high chairs. It was also decided to have an hourly short blessing stressing thankfulness for family ties.

Members of the committee are Mrs. Mel Ehrlich, chairman; Mrs. Atwood Jones and Mrs. Joe Tomlinson, publicity; Mrs. Ron Eitel, Mrs. Ron Kay, and Mrs. Larry Lewis, food; and Mrs. Ed Peters, Mrs. Bill Mosher, and Mrs. John Adkins, tickets and group reservations.

The Circleville Herald, Friday November 5, 1976

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Tell Her She Can't 'Buy' Silence

DEAR ABBY: I work with a utility crew, and recently, after completing a job on the outskirts of a large city, the foreman took us into a nearby seedy-looking restaurant for a bite to eat.

In this place was a bar, and there seated on a bar stool was my cousin's wife with a couple of characters admiring her knees! When she recognized me, she couldn't have been more embarrassed than I was. We're all in our early 30s and see each other when the family gets together.

Anyway, that night she phoned me in a half-threatening manner and told me to keep my mouth shut! But before she rang off, her tone changed, and she said she'd consider it a favor if I didn't say anything and she would return the favor if I so wished.

What would you do, Abby, if you were a MAN?

ILLINOIS

DEAR ILLINOIS: If I were a man, I'd tell her she didn't owe me any favors, and because I was also a gentleman, she didn't have to tell me to keep my mouth shut.

DEAR ABBY: Seven months ago I lost my first baby. He was only 6 weeks old. It left me heartbroken.

In the last six months, five members of my husband's family have become pregnant, and pregnancies have become the No. 1 topic at all our family gatherings.

I am very happy for those concerned, but it also makes me feel very sad and uncomfortable to sit among five expectant mothers. It brings back so many painful memories I would rather forget. I realize that these conversations weren't meant to depress me, but they do. I have tried hard to overcome my feelings of envy and resentment, but have decided that the best thing to do is just stay away from these family gatherings.

My husband thinks I'm being childish and self-pitying. What do you think? How can I solve my problem?

RAGGEDY ANN

DEAR ANN: Your feelings of envy, resentment and depression are understandable, but only by facing life's disappointments and learning to cope with them will you grow strong enough to overcome them. You may need professional help as you turn the corner. It's worth a try.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my love life. I'm only 16, but I know a lot for my age.

My boyfriend heard a lot of dirty rumors about me at the pool hall and he believes them. Those rumors are not true, but he wouldn't even let me explain.

How can I get him back?

HURT HEART

DEAR HURT: If he believes those dirty rumors, you probably can't.

A little unasked-for advice, honey: A boy who would write you off without giving you a chance to explain isn't worth the headache. Forget him.

Family Brunch Being Planned By Junior Women

A special committee of Circleville Junior Women's Club met to draw up plans for a Family Brunch to be held on Nov. 20th, 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Grange Building on the fairgrounds. The menu will be pancakes, sausage, and beverage.

The brunch is planned as a kick-off of National Family Week which runs the week of Thanksgiving. This is a time to reflect on the value of strong family ties and the satisfactions of personal and community friendships.

Mrs. William Mosher (474-5812) and Mrs. Ed Peters (474-3691) were appointed to be in charge of group reservations. Tickets will be available from members of Circleville Junior Women, Sentry Hardware, and The Gallery on Main St.

The decorations will be interesting wall slogans stressing family relationships and friendship ties. Efforts will be made to help parents of young children with service and high chairs. It was also decided to have an hourly short blessing stressing thankfulness for family ties.

Members of the committee are Mrs. Mel Ehrlich, chairman; Mrs. Atwood Jones and Mrs. Joe Tomlinson, publicity; Mrs. Ron Eitel, Mrs. Ron Kay, and Mrs. Larry Lewis, food; and Mrs. Ed Peters, Mrs. Bill Mosher, and Mrs. John Adkins, tickets and group reservations.

The annual Legion Halloween Party held Sunday evening in the Pavilion was the largest crowd to attend in several years. It could aptly be described as wall to wall people. The mummies parade was the center of interest and was pure delight for the onlookers. There were ingenious costumes and it was no easy task for the judges to select winners. Bev Whitten was pianist for the grand march of the masqueraders. Judges were district legion officers and their wives.

Chosen as prize winners were: Prettiest—1st. Amy Lane, 2nd. Guy and Tonda Bivens, 3rd. Scott Metzger. Ugliest—1st. Bill Miller, 2nd. Kevin Green, 3rd. Kelly Picklesimer. Most Original—1st. Toni McFarland, 2nd. Brenda Galloway and Sheryl Horch, 3rd. Dana Wilson. After the winners were selected and revealed the Legion Auxiliary ladies distributed treats donated by Oesterle's Inc. and the Legion boys furnished refreshments of donuts and cider. The Halloween Party is just one of the many community events sponsored or supported by American Legion Post 618. This is why they deserve the support of the rest of us when they have projects designed to enrich their treasury.

Get out your pen and get well cards and jot one off to the following... Edna Easterday (my sister in law) Room 578 St. Anthony Hospital, Columbus. Edna underwent a very serious operation last Thursday and was in the intensive care unit until Sunday. She has a long way yet and cards surely would do much to lift the morale.

Next let's send one out to Purl "Pete" Cochenour who entered Ross County Medical Center on Tuesday for expected surgery. That's at Chillicothe, Ohio 45601.

Bessie Miller will be at the home of daughter Esther Picklesimer after several days at Berger Hospital. Bessie wants each one who sent her cards, flowers and remembrances to know how very much she appreciates the kindness. The one truly bright spot in the day for her is when the mail brings cards so let's keep them going to sweet Bessie.

Wilson Thomas returned home Thursday after being hospitalized at Springfield. It was planned he would undergo heart surgery, however those plans are temporarily set aside while new medication is being used. Dolly Thompson accompanied Jean Thomas to Springfield for Wilson's return home.

Patrick and Louise Zborek, Joey and Christy have purchased a home in Clarksburg and will be residents of that village.

The women of the Mt. Pleasant United Methodist have a far reaching reputation for being excellent cooks and the suppers they have are eagerly looked forward to as witness the one they just held last Thursday evening. The turn out was terrific. Coming all the way from Springfield for the good food and fellowship were Harmon and Helen Hill Carter.

Unfortunately that was a good meal I had to miss since on the other hand it was my good fortune to be a substitute at Euchre Club and we all know that the one thing I like most to do besides eating is play cards. It was masquerade night so yours truly, Dolly Thompson and Scarlett Carter from our town really got into the spirit of the whole thing and so did Belle Sowers from Roundtown. The party poopers who didn't mask were Betty Thomas, Lurhita Sturgill, Rosemary Francis, and Mary Jo Smith. The club met in the Thomas home so before getting to that part of town the "masked trio" from Williamsport sauntered into Berger Hospital and lifted the spirits of a few of the patients.

UNICEF proved to be well received Sunday afternoon with residents contributing in the neighborhood of $92. Children of the community gathered at the UM Church and went in groups to solicit for the worthwhile cause. Afterwards they were treated to refreshments and enjoyed "showing off" their Halloween costumes.

Birthday cake and candles brings joy to the hearts of all and we have three festive occasions to write about this week.

Karen and Jim Dean have their day on Oct. 31 (that's what can truly be termed husband-wife togetherness). Karen's parents, Earl and Maxine Lanman, hosted a birthday dinner for the duo on Sunday. Joining in the celebration were Marvin and Susan Spradlin and "JJ" (Jason) of Five Points, Aunt Evelyn Blue from Circleville, the two Dean adollables Michele and Nichole and let us not forget Penny (the Dean's pet dog who is very much a family member). Later in the afternoon the family circle was completed when Barbara and Alan Bradshaw and wee one Renee joined the scene. The Bradshaws had been to Gallipolis for a visit with Alan's parents.

Grandmother Mary Picklesimer invited friends and relatives to her home for the honoring of grandson Jimmie Kneec on his 14th birthday. Wishing the young fellow many more birthdays were Dodie and Mary Beth Picklesimer, Bobby Hammond, Tony, Tracy, Stacy and Phyllis Smith, Rose Eith Payne, Terry Caldwell, M. A. Greenwood, Lori, Christine and Kathy Picklesimer, Pam Pitt, Sheila Tilly, Damon Cochenour, Tom, David and Carol Ann Kneec and daddy Jim Kneec all of the Williamsport area, Sam and Gladys Colter and daughters Angie and Sandra Jane, Ralph Colter from Clarksburg, Kate and Hayward Pritchard of Circleville.

Dodie Picklesimer was thoroughly surprised when her mother Mary Picklesimer planned a carry-in dinner as a surprise for her recent birthday. Being a part of the conspiracy and fun were Kate and Hayward Pritchard from Circleville, Sam and Gladys Colter, Angie, Sandra Jane and Ralph Colter of Clarksburg, Kathy Reigner, Winter Haven, Florida, Mr. and Mrs. Sandy Picklesimer and children Lori, Christine, Kathy, Johnny and Glenn Allen, Mary Beth Picklesimer, Jim, Jimmie, Tom, David and Carol Ann Kneec, Pam Pitt and Sheila Tilly all local folks.

Faith Ann "Lollipop" Picklesimer wants all those who sent her cards, flowers and gifts during her recent hospitalization to know how very much it all meant to her. She takes this means to express her sincere appreciation and thanks.

The entire community was stunned Tuesday afternoon to learn that prominent businessman and agriculture leader Jack Dunlap had become quite ill. He underwent emergency surgery at University Hospital where he remains in the intensive care unit. The prayers of everyone are with him and his family at this concerned hour.

Surely do hope the pretty weather we have had the last couple of days continues to hold, at least through Saturday for the late Luther and Hattie Anderson auction sale. It brings a touch of sadness to realize that our dear neighbors are gone and soon their personal belongings will be, too. The property is not being sold at auction but is for sale and can be seen by contacting Marvin Thompson, executor of the estate.

Oh, how I envy Jan Long! She and her brother Randy attended a dinner at Middletown recently and one of the other guests at the dinner was former presidential hopeful Ronald Reagan. Jan got to shake his hand!

Too many previous commitments caused a low attendance at the October festival meeting so another meeting has been re-scheduled for Sunday, Nov. 7, 1:30 p.m. A request has been made to use the Legion Hall for the meeting, however if the building has been engaged for that time the festival meeting will be held in the Pavilion. This article will go to press before the Legion meets but flyers will be distributed later in the week. Festival queen Peggy Riffe is expected to be at the meeting and speak on the large number of festivals she has attended since becoming queen last May. Plans for the 1977 festival need to be discussed, also.

Be with you again next week, the Lord willing. Take care. Think About: No man is big who has a small heart.

Darbyville To Keep Snow From Walks

Sidewalks in Darbyville will remain clear of snow this winter, according to a resolution enacted Monday at the regular meeting of Village Council.

Darbyville Mayor Marietta Kneec cast the tie-breaking vote which authorized the snow shoveling. Council members in favor of the proposal were Naoma Griffith, Minnie Sharon, and Bernice Cathel. Those opposed were Ruth Caudill, Freda Steele, and Sarah Bucy.

Councilman Cathel will be in charge of employing persons to shovel snow from the sidewalks.

In other business, council voted to remain a member of the Municipal League for 1977, authorized the purchase of a lock for the village filing cabinet and a rug for the council building, and agreed to have the Christmas Treat by Santa Claus again this year.

Mayor Kneec told council members that William Green would attend the December 6 meeting to discuss plans for placing street signs on his property.

Seek Malpractice Insurance Boost

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two rating organizations, representing medical malpractice insurers, have requested increases of 20.1 per cent in premiums for doctors, the Ohio Insurance Department said Thursday.

The Joint Underwriters Association, a state-operated insurer of last resort, asked for a similar increase.

The filings for increases by the Insurance Services Office, the Ohio Bureau of Casualty Insurers and the JUA apply to increased limits coverage. The new rates would add 15.8 per cent to hospital premiums.

Insurance Superintendent Harry W. Jump said he was considering calling a public hearing to determine whether the "increases are excessive."

Afterwards they were treated to refreshments and enjoyed "showing off" their Halloween costumes.

Birthday cake and candles brings joy to the hearts of all and we have three festive occasions to write about this week.

Karen and Jim Dean have their day on Oct. 31 (that's what can truly be termed husband-wife togetherness). Karen's parents, Earl and Maxine Lanman, hosted a birthday dinner for the duo on Sunday. Joining in the celebration were Marvin and Susan Spradlin and "JJ" (Jason) of Five Points, Aunt Evelyn Blue from Circleville, the two Dean adollables Michele and Nichole and let us not forget Penny (the Dean's pet dog who is very much a family member). Later in the afternoon the family circle was completed when Barbara and Alan Bradshaw and wee one Renee joined the scene. The Bradshaws had been to Gallipolis for a visit with Alan's parents.

Grandmother Mary Picklesimer invited friends and relatives to her home for the honoring of grandson Jimmie Knece on his 14th birthday. Wishing the young fellow many more birthdays were Dodie and Mary Beth Picklesimer, Bobby Hammond, Tony, Tracy, Stacy and Phyllis Smith, Rose Edith Payne, Terry Caldwell, M. A. Greenwood, Lori, Christine and Kathy Picklesimer, Pam Pitt, Sheila Tilly, Damon Cochenour, Tom, David and Carol Ann Knece and daddy Jim Knece all of the Williamsport area, Sam and Gladys Colter and daughters Angie and Sandra Jane, Ralph Colter from Clarksburg, Kate and Hayward Pritchard of Circleville.

Dodie Picklesimer was thoroughly surprised when her mother Mary Picklesimer planned a carry-in dinner as a surprise for her recent birthday. Being a part of the conspiracy and fun were Kate and Hayward Pritchard from Circleville, Sam and Gladys Colter, Angie, Sandra Jane and Ralph Colter of Clarksburg, Kathy Reigner, Winter Haven, Florida, Mr. and Mrs. Sandy Picklesimer and children Lori, Christine, Kathy, Johnny and Glenn Allen, Mary Beth Picklesimer, Jim, Jimmie, Tom, David and Carol Ann Knece, Pam Pitt and Sheila Tilly all local folks.

Faith Ann "Lollipop" Picklesimer wants all those who sent her cards, flowers and gifts during her recent hospitalization to know how very much it all meant to her. She takes this means to express her sincere appreciation and thanks.

The entire community was stunned Tuesday afternoon to learn that prominent businessman and agriculture leader Jack Dunlap had become quite ill. He underwent emergency surgery at University Hospital where he remains in the intensive care unit. The prayers of everyone are with him and his family at this concerned hour.

Surely do hope the pretty weather we have had the last couple of days continues to hold, at least through Saturday for the late Luther and Hattie Anderson auction sale. It brings a touch of sadness to realize that our dear neighbors are gone and soon their personal belongings will be, too. The property is not being sold at auction but is for sale and can be seen by contacting Marvin Thompson, executor of the estate.

Oh, how I envy Jan Long! She and her brother Randy attended a dinner at Middletown recently and one of the other guests at the dinner was former presidential hopeful Ronald Reagan. Jan got to shake his hand!

Too many previous commitments caused a low attendance at the October festival meeting so another meeting has been re-scheduled for Sunday, Nov. 7, 1:30 p.m. A request has been made to use the Legion Hall for the meeting, however if the building has been engaged for that time the festival meeting will be held in the Pavilion. This article will go to press before the Legion meets but flyers will be distributed later in the week. Festival queen Peggy Riffle is expected to be at the meeting and speak on the large number of festivals she has attended since becoming queen last May. Plans for the 1977 festival need to be discussed, also.

Be with you again next week, the Lord willing. Take care. Think About: No man is big who has a small heart.

Darbyville To Keep Snow From Walks

Sidewalks in Darbyville will remain clear of snow this winter, according to a resolution enacted Monday at the regular meeting of Village Council.

Darbyville Mayor Marietta Knece cast the tie-breaking vote which authorized the snow shoveling. Council members in favor of the proposal were Naoma Griffith, Minnie Sharon, and Bernice Cathel. Those opposed were Ruth Caudill, Freda Steele, and Sarah Bucy.

Councilman Cathel will be in charge of employing persons to shovel snow from the sidewalks.

In other business, council voted to remain a member of the Municipal League for 1977, authorized the purchase of a lock for the village filing cabinet and a rug for the council building, and agreed to have the Christmas Treat by Santa Claus again this year.

Mayor Knece told council members that William Green would attend the December 6 meeting to discuss plans for placing street signs on his property.

Seek Malpractice Insurance Boost

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two rating organizations, representing medical malpractice insurers, have requested increases of 20.1 per cent in premiums for doctors, the Ohio Insurance Department said Thursday.

The Joint Underwriters Association, a state-operated insurer of last resort, asked for a similar increase.

The filings for increases by the Insurance Services Office, the Ohio Bureau of Casualty Insurers and the JUA apply to increased limits coverage. The new rates would add 15.8 per cent to hospital premiums.

Insurance Superintendent Harry W. Jump said he was considering calling a public hearing to determine whether the "increases are excessive."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The 1976 Oscars won't be presented until March 28, 1977, but already the film studios are gearing up their awards campaigns.

Sales chiefs are booking choice sites for their December releases — theaters in Westwood and Beverly Hills are preferred because most academy voters live near the area. Publicity departments have reserved the deluxe private screening rooms through January. (The nominations will be announced on St. Valentine's Day).

Many of the Oscar hopefuls will receive mass releases throughout the country this month and in December. Thus, if they catch on with the general public, a steamroller effect could influence Academy voters; monetary success is often equated with quality in their eyes.

Physician Ratio Shows New Gains

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The physician-to-inpatient ratio in Ohio's mental institutions has increased 11 per cent in the last 15 months, the director of the Department of Mental Health said.

Dr. Timothy B. Moritz also said that more than 90 per cent of the department's medical staff, other than psychiatric residents in accredited training programs, have full Ohio licenses to practice medicine. The rest have limited or temporary licenses.

The patient load per physician has been reduced 27 to 47 per cent at Apple Creek, Gallipolis and Orient state institutes.

The department's medical staff provides treatment of 14,500 institution residents and 12,000 out-patients, Moritz said.

The race cannot yet be judged, since some of the last-minute releases have not been previewed. At this point in the race, "All The President's Men," now in rerelease throughout the country, appears the front-runner.

Warner Brothers is making sure the Watergate film maintains its visibility; it's currently playing in more than 600 theaters and will be playing in some metro areas, including Los Angeles, well into 1977.

"When a film is released earlier in the year, you've got to book it locally to remind the voters," explains a publicity executive.

The year's releases so far offer few possible contenders. "All The President's Men" is likely to be nominated in most major categories, including stars Dustin Hoffman and Robert Redford, and Jason Robards and Jane Alexander in support.

"The Omen" was a surprise blockbuster for 20th Century-Fox, and it may draw nominations for star Gregory Peck and director Clive Donner. The company's fiscal health was also revived by "Silent Movie," and it could be among the nominees, although the academy often overlooks comedy. Both films are in first release around the nation.

John Wayne appears a sure nominee for his dying gunslinger in "The Shootist," easily his best role since "True Grit." Although the film was not well received, "W.C. Fields and Me" could reward Rod Steiger with a nomination. Another repeater could be Walter Matthau for "Bad News Bears."

As in recent years, the field for best actress and supporting actress appears slender. There may be sentimental votes for the returns of Lauren Bacall in "The Shootist" and Audrey Hepburn in "Robin and Marian." Sarah Miles could get a mention for "The Sailor Who Fell from Grace with the Sea."

Shelley Winters, already a double winner, seems likely to be in the supporting-actress race again with her Jewish mother of "Next Stop, Greenwich Village." Young Jodie Foster is another good choice for "Taxi Driver."

Robert DeNiro, winner as supporting actor in "The Godfather, Part II," may be competing with himself as best actor. He could be nominated for "Taxi Driver," "The Last Tycoon" or "1900," although it's undecided whether the latter will be released in 1976.

Another self-competitor: Faye Dunaway. She is being mentioned for both "Network" and "Voyage of the Damned."

"Marathon Man" might score for Dustin Hoffman instead of "All The President's Men." And "Network" is being touted for the star performances of William Holden and Peter Finch, and support by Robert Duvall.

December releases with high hopes include: "Bound for Glory," David Carradine; "The Last Tycoon"; "The Seven per cent Solution," Nicol Williamson, Alan Arkin; "Voyage of the Damned," Dunaway, Oskar Werner, Max Von Sydow, etc.; "A Star is Born," Barbra Streisand; "Silver Streak"; "Nickelodeon"; "Rocky."

And don't forget another Christmas release. If "Jaws" can be nominated as best picture, why not "King Kong"?

Roman Catholics were relatively few in pioneer days in Ohio, the first edifice of that denomination in the state being dedicated in Perry County in December, 1818. Although as late as 1819 there had been only 100 Catholics in Cincinnati, with no resident priest, seven years later the frame church erected in 1823 had become inadequate and four priests and a bishop were in residence.—AP

Sales chiefs are booking choice sites for their December releases — theaters in Westwood and Beverly Hills are preferred because most academy voters live near the area. Publicity departments have reserved the deluxe private screening rooms through January. (The nominations will be announced on St. Valentine's Day).

Many of the Oscar hopefuls will receive mass releases throughout the country this month and in December. Thus, if they catch on with the general public, a steamroller effect could influence Academy voters; monetary success is often equated with quality in their eyes.

Physician Ratio Shows New Gains

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The physician-to-inpatient ratio in Ohio's mental institutions has increased 11 per cent in the last 15 months, the director of the Department of Mental Health said.

Dr. Timothy B. Moritz also said that more than 90 per cent of the department's medical staff, other than psychiatric residents in accredited training programs, have full Ohio licenses to practice medicine. The rest have limited or temporary licenses.

The patient load per physician has been reduced 27 to 47 per cent at Apple Creek, Gallipolis and Orient state institutes.

The department's medical staff provides treatment of 14,500 institution residents and 12,000 out-patients, Moritz said.

The race cannot yet be judged, since some of the last-minute releases have not been previewed. At this point in the race, "All The President's Men," now in rerelease throughout the country, appears the front-runner.

Warner Brothers is making sure the Watergate film maintains its visibility; it's currently playing in more than 600 theaters and will be playing in some metro areas, including Los Angeles, well into 1977.

"When a film is released earlier in the year, you've got to book it locally to remind the voters," explains a publicity executive.

The year's releases so far offer few possible contenders. "All The President's Men" is likely to be nominated in most major categories, including stars Dustin Hoffman and Robert Redford, and Jason Robards and Jane Alexander in support.

"The Omen" was a surprise blockbuster for 20th CenturyFox, and it may draw nominations for star Gregory Peck and director Clive Donner. The company's fiscal health was also revived by "Silent Movie," and it could be among the nominees, although the academy often overlooks comedy. Both films are in first release around the nation.

John Wayne appears a sure nominee for his dying gunslinger in "The Shootist," easily his best role since "True Grit." Although the film was not well received, "W.C. Fields and Me" could reward Rod Steiger with a nomination. Another repeater could be Walter Matthau for "Bad News Bears."

As in recent years, the field for best actress and supporting actress appears slender. There may be sentimental votes for the returns of Lauren Bacall in "The Shootist" and Audrey Hepburn in "Robin and Marian." Sarah Miles could get a mention for "The Sailor Who Fell from Grace with the Sea."

Shelley Winters, already a double winner, seems likely to be in the supporting-actress race again with her Jewish mother of "Next Stop, Greenwich Village." Young Jodie Foster is another good choice for "Taxi Driver."

Robert DeNiro, winner as supporting actor in "The Godfather, Part II," may be competing with himself as best actor. He could be nominated for "Taxi Driver," "The Last Tycoon" or "1900," although it's undecided whether the latter will be released in 1976.

Another self-competitor: Faye Dunaway. She is being mentioned for both "Network" and "Voyage of the Damned."

"Marathon Man" might score for Dustin Hoffman instead of "All The President's Men." And "Network" is being touted for the star performances of William Holden and Peter Finch, and support by Robert Duvall.

December releases with high hopes include: "Bound for Glory," David Carradine; "The Last Tycoon"; "The Seven per cent Solution," Nicol Williamson, Alan Arkin; "Voyage of the Damned," Dunaway, Oskar Werner, Max Von Sydow, etc.; "A Star is Born," Barbra Streisand; "Silver Streak"; "Nickelodeon"; "Rocky."

And don't forget another Christmas release. If "Jaws" can be nominated as best picture, why not "King Kong"?

The Rev. Henry Walters has chosen "Who Touched Me" as his sermon topic Sunday at the First Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. George Bryant of the First Baptist Church will use "Seeking the Kingdom" as his sermon topic at the 10:40 a.m. Service and "Dust Raiser" as his sermon topic at the 7 p.m. service Sunday.

The Rev. Robert Miller Sr. of Emmett Chapel United Methodist Church will be the guest minister Sunday at Good Shepherd United Methodist Church.

The Rev. Gerald Ferne will be the guest minister at Trinity Lutheran Church Sunday. The topic of his sermon will be, "For All The Saints, Hallelujah." The Adult Discussion group will meet 7:30 p.m. Monday in the pastor's Study and the church council 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the pastor's Study.

The third annual hymn sing will be held 7:30 p.m. Sunday at Heidelberg United Church of Christ, Stoutsville. The Rev. Frank Isaac will be the song leader.

The Rev. David F. Frazer of Community United Methodist Church has chosen as his sermon topic, "Thataway."

Dr. Leonard Stigler, interim pastor of Logan Elm Baptist Church, will preach in both services this Sunday. Services are held at the 4-H and Grange Building.

Roman Catholics were relatively few in pioneer days in Ohio, the first edifice of that denomination in the state being dedicated in Perry County in December, 1818. Although as late as 1819 there had been only 100 Catholics in Cincinnati, with no resident priest, seven years later the frame church erected in 1823 had become inadequate and four priests and a bishop were in residence.—AP

You need a place in which to think, in which to give thanks. The right kind of a place. How about the church?

Ohio University Hosts American History Finalists

ATHENS, Ohio — The final round in Ohio University's 30th Annual American History Contest will be held on the Athens campus Nov. 12-13, with the first place winner receiving $100 and a full tuition scholarship worth $825.

Approximately 170 seniors from Ohio high schools are expected to compete in the final round, a three question essay examination. Three Pickaway County students are among the participants.

Those eligible include the 20 top scorers in the state on a preliminary objective examination, as well as the top scorers from each of Ohio's 88 counties and the second place scorer if he or she ranked within the 95th percentile of scores for all entrants.

The preliminary multiple-choice examination was given to 15,000 students at their local schools in October.

OU Associate Professor of History Marvin E. Fletcher is chairman of the contest, which was initiated in 1947 and is sponsored by the university and the Ohio University Fund, Inc.

The second prize winners will receive $75 and a one-year partial tuition scholarship worth $450. The third prize winner will receive $50 and a similar scholarship, and fourth and fifth prize winners similar scholarships and $25. Sixth through 10th prize winners receive $25, and 11th through 15th, $10. Those ranking 16th through 25th receive honorable mention certificates.

tificates.

Steve Young Next Country Music Superstar?

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music headliner Waylon Jennings calls Steve Young his favorite singer, "the only one on the scene who has the possibility of being universal."

Jennings, one of the leaders of the progressive or "outlaw" movement in country music, says Young will be: "The Bob Dylan of country music."

Lonz Winery Auction Conducted

MIDDLE BASS ISLAND, Ohio (AP) — Auctioneers who conducted the bidding on the Lonz Winery, its mansion, marina, airstrip and thousands of bottles of wine, say they are hoping to realize $1 million from Thursday's auction to pay off the debts of the historic winery.

The sale was conducted despite the posting of a court restraining order saying nothing was to leave the island. The order was posted by Ottawa County Sheriff C.T. Stephens, who has scheduled his own sale Dec. 7 to settle some $600,000 in liens against Monroe, Mich. developer Philip Portteus, owner of the winery.

The once-popular winery was shut down last season and half of this one because it lost its license for selling to minors.

The winery and other facilities on the 220-acre site had been appraised recently at $2.2 million.

The marina brought $60,000 at Thursday's auction, and the old winery and other buildings went for $14,000.

Dale Burris of Meier Wines, Silverton, Ohio, and Paramount Distillers, owners of North Bass Island, bought the airport, with its 1,500-foot runway and lakefront footage for $20,000.

Roy Ray Giurnick, chairman of Seaway Bolt & Specialty Co. of Columbia Township, Lorain County, bought the Lonz mansion for $41,000. A company official said the mansion would be used for sales meetings and would be rented out part of the year.

Board Rules 2 To Be Reinstated

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state Personnel Board of Review has ruled that two Bureau of Motor Vehicles evaluators must be reinstated because computer printouts of excessive point violations were not public property.

The board said the state must prove that James A. Chiero and Mark Hartman destroyed public property to sustain charges that they illegally destroyed state records.

"The most logical and credible evidence is that they were not" public property, said board chairman Warren S. Earhart and member Frank E. Aven.

The Amur River forms the northeast boundary between the Soviet Union and China.

He's not country, not pop, not folk. He has no earthly idea how great he is. I believe in that dude. If he gets any better, I'll kill him."

Young, a rising "outlaw" himself, is working on his second album for RCA after more than a decade of trying to get record executives to accept his style of music.

"In the last two or three years, Nashville has opened up because of the success of Waylon and Willie (Nelson)," Young said. "I used to be unable to get my foot in the door; people wouldn't listen to what I was doing."

"Times have changed to where I can do my own thing. Maybe me and the times have come together."

The "outlaw" movement, which both Jennings and his disciple, Young, represent, has its greatest appeal among young country music fans and sounds more like rock than traditional country music. The same sort of appeal has been generated by some of the newer jazz groups — Herbie Hancock's various ensembles and The Weather Report, for examples. These groups perform within a basic jazz framework, but employ rock, Latin and even country techniques as well.

The "outlaw" sound as exhibited by Young is a combination of country, blues, folk and rock, making it hard to pigeon-hole in any category.

In his 10-year career, Young has played folk and blues besides progressive country. Songs he has written have been recorded by Jennings, Joan Baez, Rita Coolidge and Ian Matthews.

As Jennings notes, Young is a distinctive singer. His voice ranges from a clear falsetto to a bluesy growl.

"My music has to do with the South," said Young, 34, a native of Newnan, Ga. "It's a reflection of my childhood. It's a combination of folk, blues and country."

His songs are reminiscent of Tom T. Hall's, with references to stained glass windows, bus trips and revivals.

"When I sing, I like to have that edge — that soul — that Hank Williams had," he said. "I don't mean blabbering on, but really saying something."

"I don't want to lose that essence of what soul is. I hear a lot of artists I like, but then I don't like their next song."

"Hank Williams was in touch with his soul, and Lefty Frizzell was good. After them, we got into homogenized, processed country music."

But he sees market improvement in some of today's writing.

"Some of it is better than it used to be," he said. "The times are more out front, and we are lyrically more honest — more complex. But of course, so is life.

"Modern writers deal with more immediate things, but some old songs really knock me out, like 'Dark As A Dungeon' by Merle Travis. I guess a good song is a timeless thing."

He and Jennings have discussed teaming up.

"I am going to do more shows with Waylon," Young said. "But the word 'outlaw' has been used a lot, and I don't want to be put in one category."

Young, whose first RCA album was "Renegade Picker," has been compared to Nelson. Both worked for years before gaining recognition, both are gifted writers as well as musicians and both have expressed disillusion with the Nashville recording scene. Nelson went to Austin, Tex., to record, and Young headed for Los Angeles, although he returned.

"I can see similarities," Young said.

"But he has been through a lot more than I have."

"He's confident success won't change him."

"A lot of people lose their soul when they have success. Someone said the trouble with most successful artists is that they forgot to leave one foot in the street. I couldn't agree more."

The group performs for school programs and for programs of local organizations. The Swing Choir is under the direction of Mrs. Patricia Beathard.

Some of the songs they will be performing are "The Water is Wide," a folk song adapted by Luigi Zaninelli; "You Won't See Me" as recorded by Anne Murray and arranged by Ed Lojeski; and "Feelings" arranged by Chuck Cassey.

Members of the group are Teri

Willie's Dillies

By BILL MCGAFFNEY
Herald Sports Editor

We had the privilege of being at the Rubber Bowl last Saturday night — And despite the fact that our Tigers fell to a very powerful Akron St. Vincent-St. Mary team and that it rained all night — We would like to go on record as saying that we were proud of the whole performance put on by all of Circleville.

Sure we got beat by a team that would beat most of the AA and a lot of AAA schools in the state — But, the main thing is that we tried. We could have just as easily scheduled a "patsy" for our open date but what would that prove? You have to go against the big boys once in awhile just for the experience.

It also gave our boys a chance to play in what we consider one of the finest college stadiums in the state and be part of a first class operation.

But, it just wasn't the football team. What about our fine Circleville Tiger marching band who put on a great halftime show despite getting drenched? The young people did Circleville up proud and the Akron people were greatly impressed with their showing.

It takes quite a bunch of kids to ride all the way to Akron on the bus — Get soaked to the skin while delighting the crowd — And then riding home in those wet band uniforms without a complaint.

What about those loyal Tiger fans who made the trip and sat in the rain to root for our kids? They are also something! And our Tiger cheerleaders were there in full force with all the enthusiasm in the world as they led the crowd with their yells and gymnastics.

We sat with Akron people in the press box and they were all impressed with the whole Circleville operation and had nothing but good to say about it.

Incidentally, that climb to the press box was really something. It was so high that you had to make oxygen stops and we were glad that our good friend and doctor was not there or we just might have given him a heart attack and had to take care of him.

We don't want to say just how high the press box was situated — But the rain that was falling down on the fans — Was raining up where we sat.

So to all of Circleville who was at the game in any capacity — All we can say is "You're Class" and we are proud to be a Roundtownner.

Our "fearless" forecast — The Tigers will still the roar of the Lions . . . The Vikings will tame the Bobcats . . . The Braves will create waves for the Lakers . . . Mustangs will run over the Panthers . . . The Oilers will "gush" over the Browns . . . Bengals will "butt" the Rams.

Until next time, have a nice day-be a good sport.

Free Agent Negotiations Start

NEW YORK (AP) — And now, the bidding begins.

Super-agent Jerry Kapstein's Providence, R.I. offices open for business bright and early today and baseball owners and general managers will be lining up to talk money with the man who represents 10 of the 24 free agents selected in Thursday's free-agent clearance sale.

"We have appointments with clubs in both leagues starting Friday," said Kapstein, who watched quietly in a corner of the room as baseball divided up the available talent.

Thirteen players were chosen by the maximum 12 teams and nine of those men are clients of Kapstein.

The most popular player at the start of the draft was Oakland outfielder Joe Rudi, who was selected six times on the first round. The first player to be removed from the list of eligibles was Oakland catcher Gene Tenace, who reached his 12-team limit midway through the third round. Kapstein represents both of them.

Others chosen by the 12-team limit in order were Rudi and another Oakland outfielder, Don Baylor, outfielder Gary Matthews of San Francisco, pitchers Don Gullett of Cincinnati, Bill Campbell of Minnesota, Wayne Garland of Baltimore and A's reliever Rollie Fingers, infielders Bobby Grich of Baltimore, Sal Bando of Oakland, and Dave Cash of Philadelphia, and pitcher Doyle Alexander of the New York Yankees.

Many of the assembled baseball brass sought Kapstein out after the draft, introduced themselves and chatted warmly, obviously laying the groundwork for their future negotiations.

The first man drafted was Baltimore outfielder Reggie Jackson, who was picked by the Montreal Expos. But Jackson's reported asking price of $3 million for five years may have scared off some teams and he did not reach the 12-team limit until the 14th round of the draft.

Under the draft's ground rules teams are permitted to sign no more than two free agents each unless they lose more than that number. Only Oakland, with eight players available and six drafted, Baltimore with four and California with three, can sign more than two.

Charles O. Finley, owner of the Oakland club, went almost to the limit, drafting throughout the first 16 rounds and selecting such old friends as Jackson, the outfielder he traded to Baltimore on the eve of the 1976 season. He participated in the draft but he didn't enjoy it.

"It means doom," the A's owner predicted. "The handwriting is on the wall. The day of reckoning is coming. It will prevail and we are all going down. I shudder to think about sending out contracts for 1977. It is going to be very difficult to stay in business at these prices."

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn wasn't quite as pessimistic as his longtime adversary, Finley.

"Baseball will survive," said the commissioner, "but this has to work. The economies of the game may change and we will have to see if the competitive balance will remain. If these players are spread out amongst many teams, that will be all right. This was a product of collective bargaining. If it doesn't work, something else will have to be tried."

WESTFALL JUNIORS — These young men are junior members of the Westfall High School football team for 1976. They are, kneeling from the left, Dale Ruoff, Keith

Expansion Draft Held Today

NEW YORK (AP) — On the sixth floor of the Plaza Hotel, literally on the floor of that famous edifice, lies the future of the Toronto Blue Jays.

All day Thursday, a nine-man team from the Blue Jays was holed up in a magnificent suite, debating which players to pick in today's expansion draft.

The wall-to-wall carpet was obscured by sheets of paper, strewn all over the room. And on those pieces of paper were the keys to today's draft for the new Toronto franchise.

Peter Bavasi, executive vice president and chief operations officer of the Blue Jays, surveyed the rubble in the room and said: "All this represents months of hard work. If we don't find the best players available, no one can."

Bavasi estimates that he and his crew of talent scouts have worked nearly 14,000 hours over the past three months, scouring the countryside for the best baseball talent available. But it really won't be the best talent around; it just will be the best that is being offered to Toronto and Seattle, the American League's new teams for 1977.

"It's a tough nut to crack," said Bavasi, who left a similar job with San Diego to join the Blue Jays. "But we think we'll get the best players that are available to us."

"I'm somewhat disappointed. The clubs didn't leave unprotected as many young players as I would have liked."

Each of the 12 established AL teams was allowed to protect 15 players, plus any minor leaguer signed after 1975. The 12 teams must lose five players, one in each of the five rounds. Each time the teams lose a player, they can protect three more — until the fourth round, when they can pull back only two.

After five rounds, the two expansion clubs each will have 30 players at a cost of $5.25 million, or $175,000 a player.

Bavasi knows that the players available to Toronto are not the cream of the crop. But he thinks hard work will prevent the crop from being sour. To that end Bavasi and his team reviewed extensive scouting reports on about 1,800 players, compiling information from his own bird dogs and from some "friendly teams" in the National League.

That figure was then reduced by two-thirds because of the AL clubs' protected lists and the fact that veterans with 10 years in the major leagues — the last five with the same team — can veto any movement.

That left some 700 players, 50 or 60 per organization. Scrutinizing the scouting reports brought a further reduction, leaving the Blue Jays 192 athletes — 16 per team.

The Toronto crew graded the remaining players from 1-192, and then by individual position. They even broke down the pitchers into four categories: right-handed starters, righthanded relievers, left-handed starters and left-handed relievers.

And as long as the cleaning woman doesn't vacuum the floor before today, the Blue Jays hope to have a successful draft.

Trap Shoot Scheduled

The Circleville BPO Elks will hold a card and trap shoot beginning 1 p.m. Sunday at Elsea Trailer Sales, Route 23.

Hams and turkeys will be offered for prizes. Elks and friends are welcome to attend.

Cincinnati Reds Join Gullett Talks

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds, whose trademark was coming from behind in bleak situations, are going into extra innings in a bid to keep their ace left-hander Don Gullett.

The Reds decided to join 12 other major league teams in a high stakes

Payne Powers Grid Victory

Stuart Payne put on a dazzling offensive display as he galloped for four touchdowns to pace the Circleville eighth grade grid squad to a 36-14 win over visiting Washington C.H. Thursday in the Little Tigers season finale.

The win gave the eighth grade team a season mark of 6-0-1.

Payne raced and romped his way to paydirt on runs of 30, 50 and 35 yards and also returned a kickoff for 70 yards.

Paul Leahy tallied the other Tiger touchdown when he recovered a fumble in the endzone. Leahy also added a pair of conversions and Brad Fisher put over another.

Washington C.H. reached touchdown territory in the third and fourth quarters.

"We have really enjoyed working with this fine bunch of youngsters in both the seventh and eighth grades as they had a lot of determination and desire and an endless amount of pride," Circleville coaches John Edgar and Neal Handler stated.

Beulah Park Holds Circleville Day

Two big races will feature the card at Beulah Park on Circleville Day Saturday.

The first will be a nine-horse race over a mile and 70 yards for a purse of $7,700. It will be an allowance race for three-year olds and up with the early favorites being Three Legs Charlie, Bold Dun-Cee and Emory Jay.

The co-feature will be a seven-horse liberated stakes added race with a purse of $20,000. This will be for two-year-old fillies over six furlongs with TV Card the early favorite and carrying an assigned top weight of 123 pounds.

poker game in hopes of keeping the 25-year-old hurler in a Cincinnati uniform.

Gullett was drafted by a dozen clubs in Thursday's free agent re-entry draft, including Cincinnati's archrival, the Los Angeles Dodgers, who tabbed the 91-game winner as their top choice.

Gullett's agent, Jerry Kapstein, said he would begin hearing the top offers today from the 13 clubs who want to sign Gullett.

The Reds refused to participate in the free agent draft, saying they owed it to the players who helped win consecutive World Series titles. But at the conclusion of the historic event, they exercised the right to try to re-sign their former No. 1 draft choice.

Gullett played out his option with Cincinnati when his request for a five-year contract was turned down.

Now it appears, Cincinnati will have to give considerably to keep him.

Besides the Dodgers, one of baseball's richest clubs, the Reds will be bucking offers from Atlanta and the New York Yankees. The Braves and Yankees paid multi-million dollar contracts in the past two years to sign Andy Messersmith and Jim (Catfish) Hunter to longterm contracts.

The Braves took Gullett in the second round and the Yankees made him a third round choice. Others bidding for his services are the Cleveland, Baltimore, Chicago White Sox, St. Louis, Boston, New York Mets, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Oakland.

Gullett declined to discuss his new freedom.

"I'll have no comment until after I get together with my agent," said Gullett, who is recovering from a dislocated tendon suffered during the World Series.

Tiger Netters Stop Unioto

Circleville girls volleyball team ran its season record to 13-2 with a win in two straight games over visiting Unioto Thursday, 15-11, 15-9.

The Tigers are also leading the South Central Ohio League with a mark of 5-0. They will meet Hamilton Twp. 2 p.m. Saturday in the Sectional finals at West Jefferson.

Natalie Martin, Sue Frericks, Brenna Lintner and Sue Stevenson led the serving game which carried a 73 per cent team efficiency rating which is below the Tigers average.

"We just couldn't get our serving game going and were having trouble getting points," Circleville coach Joy O'Brien stated. "Our defense, led by Natalie Martin and Michelle Nolan, did a great job for us with a team rating of 84 per cent. This is the first time this year that we have had a team rating of over 80 per cent on defense."

Sue Stevenson and Michelle Nolan led the sets while Brenna Lintner and Sue Frericks did the job in the spiking department.

The score was tied 2-2 in the first game when Brenna Lintner put five straight points on the board, Natalie Martin added six straight and Brenna Lintner and Wanda Boyd each had one.

With the Tigers leading 3-2 in the second game, Sue Frericks netted eight straight points, Sue Stevenson tallied three and Sue Frericks came back with the final point.

Paul Leahy tallied the other Tiger touchdown when he recovered a fumble in the endzone. Leahy also added a pair of conversions and Brad Fisher put over another.

Washington C.H. reached touchdown territory in the third and fourth quarters.

"We have really enjoyed working with this fine bunch of youngsters in both the seventh and eighth grades as they had a lot of determination and desire and an endless amount of pride," Circleville coaches John Edgar and Neal Handler stated.

Beulah Park Holds Circleville Day

Two big races will feature the card at Beulah Park on Circleville Day Saturday.

The first will be a nine-horse race over a mile and 70 yards for a purse of $7,700. It will be an allowance race for three-year olds and up with the early favorites being Three Legs Charlie, Bold Dun-Cee and Emory Jay.

The co-feature will be a seven-horse liberated stakes added race with a purse of $20,000. This will be for two-year-old fillies over six furlongs with TV Card the early favorite and carrying an assigned top weight of 123 pounds.

poker game in hopes of keeping the 25-year-old hurler in a Cincinnati uniform.

Gullett was drafted by a dozen clubs in Thursday's free agent re-entry draft, including Cincinnati's archrival, the Los Angeles Dodgers, who tabbed the 91-game winner as their top choice.

Gullett's agent, Jerry Kapstein, said he would begin hearing the top offers today from the 13 clubs who want to sign Gullett.

The Reds refused to participate in the free agent draft, saying they owed it to the players who helped win consecutive World Series titles. But at the conclusion of the historic event, they exercised the right to try to re-sign their former No. 1 draft choice.

Gullett played out his option with Cincinnati when his request for a five-year contract was turned down.

Now it appears, Cincinnati will have to give considerably to keep him.

Besides the Dodgers, one of baseball's richest clubs, the Reds will be bucking offers from Atlanta and the New York Yankees. The Braves and Yankees paid multi-million dollar contracts in the past two years to sign Andy Messersmith and Jim (Catfish) Hunter to longterm contracts.

The Braves took Gullett in the second round and the Yankees made him a third round choice. Others bidding for his services are the Cleveland, Baltimore, Chicago White Sox, St. Louis, Boston, New York Mets, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Oakland.

Gullett declined to discuss his new freedom.

"I'll have no comment until after I get together with my agent," said Gullett, who is recovering from a dislocated tendon suffered during the World Series.

Free Agent Negotiations Start

NEW YORK (AP) — And now, the bidding begins.

Super-agent Jerry Kapstein's Providence, R.I. offices open for business bright and early today and baseball owners and general managers will be lining up to talk money with the man who represents 10 of the 24 free agents selected in Thursday's free-agent clearance sale.

"We have appointments with clubs in both leagues starting Friday," said Kapstein, who watched quietly in a corner of the room as baseball divided up the available talent.

Thirteen players were chosen by the maximum 12 teams and nine of those men are clients of Kapstein.

The most popular player at the start of the draft was Oakland outfielder Joe Rudi, who was selected six times on the first round. The first player to be removed from the list of eligibles was Oakland catcher Gene Tenace, who reached his 12-team limit midway through the third round. Kapstein represents both of them.

Others chosen by the 12-team limit in order were Rudi and another Oakland outfielder, Don Baylor, outfielder Gary Matthews of San Francisco, pitchers Don Gullett of Cincinnati, Bill Campbell of Minnesota, Wayne Garland of Baltimore and A's reliever Rollie Fingers, infielders Bobby Grich of Baltimore, Sal Bando of Oakland, and Dave Cash of Philadelphia, and pitcher Doyle Alexander of the New York Yankees.

Many of the assembled baseball brass sought Kapstein out after the draft, introduced themselves and chatted warmly, obviously laying the groundwork for their future negotiations.

The first man drafted was Baltimore outfielder Reggie Jackson, who was picked by the Montreal Expos. But Jackson's reported asking price of $3 million for five years may have scared off some teams and he did not reach the 12-team limit until the 14th round of the draft.

Under the draft's ground rules teams are permitted to sign no more than two free agents each unless they lose more than that number. Only Oakland, with eight players available and six drafted, Baltimore with four and California with three, can sign more than two.

Charles O. Finley, owner of the Oakland club, went almost to the limit, drafting throughout the first 16 rounds and selecting such old friends as Jackson, the outfielder he traded to Baltimore on the eve of the 1976 season. He participated in the draft but he didn't enjoy it.

"It means doom," the A's owner predicted. "The handwriting is on the wall. The day of reckoning is coming. It will prevail and we are all going down. I shudder to think about sending out contracts for 1977. It is going to be very difficult to stay in business at these prices."

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn wasn't quite as pessimistic as his longtime adversary, Finley.

"Baseball will survive," said the commissioner, "but this has to work. The economies of the game may change and we will have to see if the competitive balance will remain. If these players are spread out amongst many teams, that will be all right. This was a product of collective bargaining. If it doesn't work, something else will have to be tried."

WESTFALL JUNIORS — These young men are junior members of the Westfall High School football team for 1976. They are, kneeling from the left, Dale Ruoff, Keith

Expansion Draft Held Today

NEW YORK (AP) — On the sixth floor of the Plaza Hotel, literally on the floor of that famous edifice, lies the future of the Toronto Blue Jays.

All day Thursday, a nine-man team from the Blue Jays was holed up in a magnificent suite, debating which players to pick in today's expansion draft.

The wall-to-wall carpet was obscured by sheets of paper, strewn all over the room. And on those pieces of paper were the keys to today's draft for the new Toronto franchise.

Peter Bavasi, executive vice president and chief operations officer of the Blue Jays, surveyed the rubble in the room and said: "All this represents months of hard work. If we don't find the best players available, no one can."

Bavasi estimates that he and his crew of talent scouts have worked nearly 14,000 hours over the past three months, scouring the countryside for the best baseball talent available. But it really won't be the best talent around; it just will be the best that is being offered to Toronto and Seattle, the American League's new teams for 1977.

"It's a tough nut to crack," said Bavasi, who left a similar job with San Diego to join the Blue Jays. "But we think we'll get the best players that are available to us."

"I'm somewhat disappointed. The clubs didn't leave unprotected as many young players as I would have liked."

Each of the 12 established AL teams was allowed to protect 15 players, plus any minor leaguer signed after 1975. The 12 teams must lose five players, one in each of the five rounds. Each time the teams lose a player, they can protect three more — until the fourth round, when they can pull back only two.

After five rounds, the two expansion clubs each will have 30 players at a cost of $5.25 million, or $175,000 a player.

Bavasi knows that the players available to Toronto are not the cream of the crop. But he thinks hard work will prevent the crop from being sour.

To that end Bavasi and his team reviewed extensive scouting reports on about 1,800 players, compiling information from his own bird dogs and from some "friendly teams" in the National League.

That figure was then reduced by two-thirds because of the AL clubs' protected lists and the fact that veterans with 10 years in the major leagues — the last five with the same team — can veto any movement.

That left some 700 players, 50 or 60 per organization. Scrutinizing the scouting reports brought a further reduction, leaving the Blue Jays 192 athletes — 16 per team.

The Toronto crew graded the remaining players from 1-192, and then by individual position. They even broke down the pitchers into four categories: right-handed starters, righthanded relievers, left-handed starters and left-handed relievers.

And as long as the cleaning woman doesn't vacuum the floor before today, the Blue Jays hope to have a successful draft.

Trap Shoot Scheduled

The Circleville BPO Elks will hold a card and trap shoot beginning 1 p.m. Sunday at Elsea Trailer Sales, Route 23.

Hams and turkeys will be offered for prizes. Elks and friends are welcome to attend.

Pro Picker Sees Victory By Steelers

NEW YORK (AP) — Let's talk about points this week.

In the last two weeks, the Pittsburgh Steelers, trying to turn their National Football League season around, have not allowed any. In the last two weeks, the New York Giants, trying only to survive, have not scored any.

And that is why the Pittsburgh Steelers are succeeding at their task and the New York Giants are failing at theirs.

The Steelers have not allowed a touchdown in winning their last three games and now have squared their season record at 4-4. That leaves them in a three-way tie with Houston and Cleveland, two games behind Cincinnati in the American Conference Central Division.

On the agenda this week are the Kansas City Chiefs who have won three of their last four games, but none of them against Steelers-type teams.

The Giants, on the other hand, have not scored a point in the last 10 periods. Consecutive shutouts against Pittsburgh and Philadelphia mark the first time that has happened to the Giants since 1932. Winless in eight games, the Giants must deal this Sunday with Dallas, the National Conference East leaders.

The Cowboys are tough on good teams and the Giants have not been very good. Neither for that matter was the Pro Picket last week. A lackluster 8-6 record made the season's mark 75-36-1, a .676 percentage.

The picks:

Pittsburgh 33, Kansas City 7

The shutout string ends, but the victories go on for the Steelers. Six more wins would make them 10-4 and they think that will be good enough for a playoff berth. The Chiefs have improved, but they are not in Pittsburgh's class.

Dallas 41, NY Giants 14

There's no good reason to expect the Giants to score two touchdowns. But there are all sorts of good reasons to expect the Cowboys to bomb New York. The Giants defense is about ready to collapse from supporting the absent offense. This is the perfect spot for it to happen.

Chicago 21, Oakland 17

Label this the Upset Special. Coach Jack Pardee has the Bears believing they can beat anybody, and after kayoing previously unbeaten Minnesota last week, maybe they can. The Raiders are three games ahead in the AFC West and could lose interest in this inter-conference match.

San Francisco 27, Washington 14

The wear and tear is starting to show on the elderly Redskins. The 49ers have one of the best pass rushes in the NFL and that should keep Billy Kilmer and Joe Theisman on the run.

Baltimore 30, San Diego 10

The Colts may be the best team in the NFL right now. Lydell Mitchell and Bert Jones key an explosive offense that never seems to let up.

Minnesota 23, Detroit 17

The Lions have to win to create an NFC Central race. Minnesota won't let that happen, certainly not at home.

Cleveland 20, Houston 17

Another upset pick. Both teams are tied in the AFC Central with 4-4 records. But Houston still is licking its Monday night wounds inflicted by Baltimore. The extra day's rest is worth three points and a victory for Cleveland.

Miami 24, NY Jets 10

The Jets have lost nine of the last 10 games against Miami and the Dolphins, now 4-4, still figure they can get to the playoffs. Count New York as one more stepping stone on that path.

St. Louis 27, Philadelphia 13

The cardiac Cards were at it again with last week's overtime victory against San Francisco. Jim Bakken provided the winning points with a 21-yard field goal. The Eagles will be easier.

New England 20, Buffalo 14

Go figure the Patriots. They looked like world-beaters early in the season, but then last week they looked just beat against Miami. O.J. Simpson can't run for 166 yards every week and that was the only offense the Bills could generate against the Jets.

Atlanta 17, Seattle 7

Look for Scott Hunter to call the signals for the Falcons. He steered them to victory over New Orleans in the second half last week. The Seahawks still are learning to play together.

Green Bay 23, New Orleans 14

Don't mistake either of these clubs for a powerhouse. Packers lost three straight, won three straight and now have dropped their last two. Saints also are having problems, with three straight setbacks. Stay with the Saints' streak.

Denver 33, Tampa Bay 6

Look for the Broncos to bounce back after losing last week to Oakland. Tampa Bay, meanwhile, just keeps bouncing every week.

Cincinnati 24, Los Angeles 20

A Monday night goodie for Mongo and his friends. We like the Bengals for no special reason other than they are at home and have James Harris, Pat Haden or Ron Jaworski at quarterback.

Red Wings Beat Flyers

By BOB GREENE

AP Sports Writer

A year ago Eddie Giacomin, at the age of 36, was put on waivers by the New York Rangers.

Thursday night, Giacomin, now with the Detroit Red Wings, proved again he is still one of the best goalies in the National Hockey League.

"We should have won," said Philadelphia Coach Fred Shero after his Flyers lost to Detroit 3-2. "We outplayed them. We deserve to win."

"But that Giacomin... he was superb all night long. He robbed us time and time again. We had great chances but he was the difference."

In Tuesday night's only other NHL contest, Boston downed Chicago 7-5.

In the World Hockey Association, Indianapolis defeated Cincinnati 5-2, Birmingham downed Phoenix 5-3 and Calgary stopped Edmonton 4-2.

Cavaliers Edge

Milwaukee, 96-88

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — The teamwork-minded Cleveland Cavaliers had to resort to what Coach Bill Fitch disgustedly called their "savior offense" Thursday night—but it was just enough to keep their record unblemished.

Third-year forward Campy Russell came off the bench to fill the bill with 15 points in the fourth period as the Cavaliers took a hard-earned 96-88 National Basketball Association victory over the Milwaukee Bucks.

Illini Face Tough Ohio State Squad

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Coach Bob Blackman realizes the odds facing his Illinois football team Saturday, a 21-point underdog against eighth ranked Ohio State, the defending Big Ten Conference champion.

"But I don't think it requires a miracle for us to win, by any means," said Blackman.

"Our guys are going in there with a perfect mental attitude. We'll have to be at our best and avoid mistakes," added the coach of the Illini, 4-4 overall and 3-2 in the conference to the Buckeyes' 6-1-1 and 5-0 records.

A crowd of more than 87,000, the 49th straight Ohio Stadium sellout, will see quarterback Jim Pacentia make his first home start. The senior from Akron, Ohio, was pressed into service two weeks ago when No. 1 Rod Gerald was hurt.

Blackman concedes Pacentia is not a game-breaking threat like Gerald, but warned, "They are not devastated on offense with him in there. You have to raze about their backfield."

Woody Hayes, Ohio State's coach, has relied on fullback Pete Johnson, the Big Ten's alltime scoring champion, and tailback Jeff Logan for more than half of the Buckeyes' rushes. Logan has 896 yards and Johnson 575 yards.

"Johnson is one of the best fullbacks in the country," said Blackman, "and Logan has been a standout all year."

Johnson now has 49 regular season touchdowns and is 10 shy of the all-time collegiate record established by Army's Glenn Davis in the 1940s. Four Rose Bowl touchdowns by the big senior are not recognized in the NCAA total.

The Illini have running weapons of their own, alternating tailbacks Jim Coleman and Chubby Phillips. The pair owns all but 223 of Illinois' 1,225 rushing yards, 588 of it by Coleman.

Hayes worries about Illinois' 31-6 torpedoing of Missouri, which a week later won in Columbus 22-21.

"They played a superior game against Missouri. They are capable of playing very fine football. We had better be ready for a keyed-up opponent," said the Ohio State coach.

The Buckeyes need an 18th straight conference victory to stay abreast of top-ranked Michigan on the way to their annual Big Ten showdown in two weeks. The Wolverines, tied for the lead with the Buckeyes, are at Purdue Saturday.

In Mid-American Conference games, Ohio University and Bowling Green, tied for third with Western Michigan, collide at Bowling Green. The Broncos visit Miami and, at night, Kent State travels to Hawaii and Northern Illinois at Toledo.

Cincinnati (6-1) continues its rugged schedule, facing a Top Ten-ranked team for the second straight week. The Bearcats, a 31-17 loser to No. 7 Georgia last week, heads for No. 6 Maryland this time.

In other main independent games, Dayton plays at Northeast Louisiana at night, Evansville at Ashland, Eastern Illinois at Youngstown, Akron at Western Illinois and Central State at Hillsdale.

Baldwin-Wallace, if it beats visiting Denison, can wrap up the Blue Division berth in the Ohio Conference playoff game. The Red Division spot rests among Wittenberg, Muskingum and Ohio Northern.

Wittenberg, 3-0 in the division, plays Heidelberg, Muskingum at Capital and Ohio Northern at Wooster. Muskingum and Ohio Northern are 2-1 in the OC. Other OC games have Ohio Wesleyan at Marietta and Mount Union at Otterbein, night.

In the Hoosier-Buckeye Conference, Wilmington, second behind Hanover, is at Defiance and Findlay at Taylor. Presidents' Conference play includes Bethany at Hiram.

Elsewhere, Georgetown D.C. is at John Carroll, Oberlin at Alma and Case Reserve at Kenyon.

Low pressure over Lake Huron was being nudged eastward across Ohio today by high pressure moving out of the Mississippi Valley.

Snow flurries, which dumped about one inch of snow in the Toledo area, were to taper off today under the influence of the high, but the threat of locally heavy snow continued in the snow belt areas east of Cleveland.

Temperatures were to remain on the cool side today with afternoon highs in the 40s over most of the state. Lows tonight will dip again into the 20s.

A new cold front dropping south out of central Canada will spread clouds back in over the state Saturday with temperatures rising into the 40s and low 50s ahead of the front.

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SATURDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Influences fairly favorable, but don't consider all decisions made now as final. You may have to revise early next week.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Rule out extremes and foolish chance-taking. Maintain a steady hand, a watchful eye and a determination not to forsake principles. Some misleading influences prevail.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Review each plan for originality, method of execution AND follow-up. Astute action can make any sincere endeavor easier, register gains faster.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): An above-average day in certain areas; possibly trying in others. Meet all situations with equanimity. Don't anticipate difficulty; take whatever you meet in stride.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Take helpful hints from all sources. From the least considered may come the best ideas. Leave no stone unturned in your quest for praiseworthy advancement.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): A few delicate spots. Carefully document realities, possibilities, and do not fear to tackle a likely proposition — no matter how "far out" it may seem at first.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): A good day for travel, but you may need some additional information before taking off — especially where finances are concerned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): While some changes are taking place, the overall atmosphere is governed by beneficent stars. Begin helpful discussions, and stick with any trying matters that may still need care.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): A good word from the right source may enable you to attain the recognition you believe you deserve now. You have just cause for optimism.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Don't brood over circumstances beyond your control, and do accept changes gracefully. They could be for the better, you know.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Don't take others — or yourself — too seriously. A bit of fun and frivolity will do wonders for your morale.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): A time for definitely clarifying your objectives. Get in touch with those who share your interests and, between you, work out a clear and concise program of action.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a great energy, both physical and mental. As dynamic, self-reliant and ambitious as most natives of Scorpio, you have, nevertheless, a softer, more sensitive and sentimental side than they, and you are always more than willing to help those in need, to fight for their rights and to assume responsibilities in their behalf. Careerwise, you are a do-er rather than a dreamer and are never happy unless striving for new goals, reaching for new heights — which you usually attain, since, once your mind is set upon it, you never stop until you have reached a desired goal. Extremely versatile, there are many fields in which you could succeed, notably: writing, music, the theater, the law, medicine, painting, business management and finance.

Views On Tiger

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Recreating history as drama is always risky business. Someone who was there or who has done better research is sure to shoot holes in your script.

But when the producers (a) do extensive research, (b) cast the drama splendidly and film it on location, and (c) refuse to resort to melodrama, the result is not make-believe.

Such is ABC's "21 Hours at Munich," a well-paced, chillingly accurate account of the events at the 1972 Olympic Games when 11 Israeli team members were killed in a terrorist assault.

The two-hour program airs Sunday night. Its major competition: NBC's broadcast of the blockbuster hit movie, "Gone with the Wind," which NBC expects will draw 110 million viewers.

Some critics call this public-be-damned program. But the choice is yours — a romantic, 37-year-old Civil War epic or a taut, gripping recreation of a real and frightening moment in modern history.

Author Serge Groussard and screenwriters Edward Hume and Howard Fast have carefully researched the film made about the Munich tragedy, sorting their facts well, producing a solid, cohesive account.

The first-rate cast includes William Holden as Police Chief Manfred Schreiber, Franco Nero as a terrorist leader, Shirley Knight as a surprise contact between authorities and the terrorist, Richard Basehart as West German Chancellor Willy Brandt and Anthony Quayle as Gen. Zvi Zamir, head of Israeli security.

The show opens at 4 a.m. in Munich, where the terrorists scale a fence and enter the Olympic village so absurdly easily you wonder if the story line isn't too pat. Then you realize: that's how it happened. The confusion that followed — the false reports, the ultimatums and deadlines that were extended — all appear to be drama. Perhaps. But it all happened that way.

Miss Knight's role appears at first just window dressing. Newsmen who covered the Munich massacre can't recall a woman negotiating with the Arab terrorists. But those who spent more than $2 million to make the film say that Annaliese Graes, an interpreter, was overlooked in Munich, yet she played a vital role, as depicted in the movie.

Midway in the account, Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir is called and told the terrorists are demanding that 236 Arabs currently in prison be released.

"If we should give in," she says, "No Israeli anywhere in the world can feel safe."

A slight inaccuracy in the show: Israeli security chief Zamir (Quayle) flew to Munich with a team of commandos and offered to take over the task of trying to rescue the Israeli hostages.

In the film, he mildly disapproves of the rescue plans of the German police chief (Holden). In reality, the press at Munich was led to believe Zamir's disapproval was much stronger. And the film doesn't mention the Israeli commandos he brought to Munich.

ABC sportscaster Jim McKay, who for exhausting hours in Munich reported the tragedy in 1972, now narrates the recreation of it, injecting yet another ring of truth to the program.

Some of the movie's dialogue may be contrived, but four years have passed.

Beat Goes On For 'Old' Drummer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — For 53-year-old Ed Cassidy, the beat just goes on, and on, and on.

Cassidy is a drummer who broke into the music business in 1938 and now bills himself as the world's oldest keeper of the rock beat.

"I'm the world's oldest rock 'n' roll drummer, as far as I know," he says. "It's sort of neat. I'm like living proof to young people that they can look forward to being in the business as long as they want, if they present themselves properly."

Cassidy plays for Spirit — a group that has followed a rock 'n' roller coaster path of ups and downs since Cassidy helped form it a decade ago.

The band now is trying to stage a comeback on the strength of its latest album, "Farther Along," a typically diverse work in which four of the five original members play together for the first time since a 1971 split.

It's the group's eighth album and, according to some critics, not its best. The old man of the skins bristles at the criticism.

"It's a worthy piece of music — it stands up for itself," Cassidy said. "We are human beings affected by everything around us just like you are. What we record is dictated by the times and where we are at the time."

Where the drummer is at right now is rock. It wasn't always that way.

"I started out in 1938 playing country-western music," Cassidy said. "Then it was polka, and then Dixieland and then the early forms of jazz. Later it evolved into the big band jazz sound."

"That's when I joined a band in the early 40s that traveled by bus through 17 states in the Midwest. It was great."

It wasn't until the mid-1960s that Cassidy turned from jazz to rock. "I didn't like early rock," said Cassidy, who has shaved his head since 1959. "It was really a primitive type of thing."

But when Bob Dylan and the Rolling Stones came along, a friend persuaded Cassidy to sample his first morsel of rock 'n' roll drumming. Now he swears by the stuff.

"Rock 'n' roll is the greatest thing that's happened to this country, musically. It allows for integration of all forms — rock, jazz, Broadway, opera, folk. It opened up a whole new era."

How long will Ed Cassidy continue to romp in this new era?

"I have a lot of other interests — television, photography, music history — but I like doing music and will continue as long as I am still getting something out of it myself and giving the audience something in return," he said. "I want to play but I don't want it to be a chore."

Beat Goes On For 'Old' Drummer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — For 53-year-old Ed Cassidy, the beat just goes on, and on, and on.

Cassidy is a drummer who broke into the music business in 1938 and now bills himself as the world's oldest keeper of the rock beat.

"I'm the world's oldest rock 'n' roll drummer, as far as I know," he says. "It's sort of neat. I'm like living proof to young people that they can look forward to being in the business as long as they want, if they present themselves properly."

Cassidy plays for Spirit — a group that has followed a rock 'n' roller coaster path of ups and downs since Cassidy helped form it a decade ago.

The band now is trying to stage a comeback on the strength of its latest album, "Farther Along," a typically diverse work in which four of the five original members play together for the first time since a 1971 split.

It's the group's eighth album and, according to some critics, not its best. The old man of the skins bristles at the criticism.

"It's a worthy piece of music — it stands up for itself," Cassidy said. "We are human beings affected by everything around us just like you are. What we record is dictated by the times and where we are at the time."

Where the drummer is at right now is rock. It wasn't always that way.

"I started out in 1938 playing country-western music," Cassidy said.

"Then it was polka, and then Dixieland and then the early forms of jazz. Later it evolved into the big band jazz sound."

"That's when I joined a band in the early 40s that traveled by bus through 17 states in the Midwest. It was great."

It wasn't until the mid-1960s that Cassidy turned from jazz to rock.

"I didn't like early rock," said Cassidy, who has shaved his head since 1959. "It was really a primitive type of thing."

But when Bob Dylan and the Rolling Stones came along, a friend persuaded Cassidy to sample his first morsel of rock 'n' roll drumming. Now he swears by the stuff.

"Rock 'n' roll is the greatest thing that's happened to this country, musically. It allows for integration of all forms — rock, jazz, Broadway, opera, folk. It opened up a whole new era."

How long will Ed Cassidy continue to romp in this new era?

"I have a lot of other interests — television, photography, music history — but I like doing music and will continue as long as I am still getting something out of it myself and giving the audience something in return," he said. "I want to play but I don't want it to be a chore."

Protestant Merger Not Likely Soon

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The incoming president of the Consultation on Church Union (COCU) says it is unlikely that the 14-year effort to merge nine Protestant sects will be successful before the end of this decade.

Dr. Rachel Henderlite of Austin, Tex., said the group has had many problems since its first meeting in 1962 in determining church structure and resolving disputes on contemporary issues.

Even if these issues can be resolved at this year's meeting here, she said Thursday, there is little chance of rapid unification of the 22 million members of the churches.

Dr. Henderlite noted that some churches' governing bodies meet only once every four years and some of those met recently. For those churches, there is not enough time for unification to be voted upon and accepted before the end of the 1970s.

Expected to be confirmed as president of the COCU before the end of the three days of meetings and workshops Saturday, Dr. Henderlite was in 1965 the first woman to be ordained as a Southern Presbyterian minister.

She said a document called "A Common Theological Basis for Further Work Toward Union" is expected to be offered to delegates for a vote by Saturday.

The document will outline areas of faith, worship, sacraments and ministry, she said.

Attended by 90 delegates and nearly 100 alternates and their families, meetings were held Thursday to discuss the document, which is similar to a first draft of a plan of union introduced at a conference in 1970.

During that meeting, the draft became bogged down in a membership dispute over the structure of a united church and has not been reintroduced until now, Dr. Henderlite said.

The meetings thus far, she said, "have been primarily a matter of learning what the job is and determining where we are in the job."

Some of the points to be included in the revised document are:

- Racial and sexual discrimination would be opposed both in the church and in society at large.
- Baptism by immersion, pouring or sprinkling of water of both infants and adults would reflect the varied understandings of the membership rite.
- The united church would bear a resemblance to the uniting denominations but would be an inclusive and diverse body unlike any of the previous.
- The Apostles and Nicene creeds would be accepted but no single confession would be required for every body.
- The Lord's Supper (communion) would be the heart of the church's worship but the sacramental nature of other rites would be recognized.

Participating churches are African Methodist Episcopal, United Presbyterian U.S.A., Presbyterian U.S., United Methodist, United Church of Christ, African Methodist Episcopal Zion, Disciples of Christ, Christian Methodist Episcopal and Episcopal.

Tallmadge Woman Wins Ohio Lottery

CLEVELAND (AP) — Milly Folk, 37, says she and her family will get a lot more use out of the seven-month-old family camper now that the bank account is being beefed up with a $250,000 Ohio lottery prize.

The Tallmadge woman, who is a central station manager for the Burns International Security Service, Inc., won the top prize in the weekly, televised Pot O'Gold game Thursday night.

The $25,000 second prize went to Chin Mei Chien "Carol" Corrao of Parma Heights.

Other Pot O'Gold winners included Frederick Roberts of Adrian, Mich., $9,900; Edna Duchon, Cleveland Heights, $8,600; Beulah Moore, Dresden, $10,200, and Brian Shott, 18, of Waterford—reported to be the youngest person ever to appear on the televised show—$11,000.

Jerry Collier of South Shore, Ky., won the top prize of $62,000 in the Double Play game.

Other Double Play winners were Charles Peters, Greenfield, Ind., $25,000, and Paul Shaffer, Vaughnsville, $11,000.

Mrs. Folk said she plans to keep on working for the present at Burns, where she has been employed for three years, although she and her husband, Van, 39, may take early retirement.

She said her husband was her supervisor as branch manager for Burns.

She said some of the winnings will go toward paying off loans on the camper and their home, and she plans to see that her three children get their education.

Mrs. Folk said she has a son by a previous marriage, Larry Wix, who is nearly 19, and two stepchildren, Mark, 15, and Marla, 13.

Contestants were announced for next week's games. The Lottery Commission said contestants for the Pot O'Gold game will include John T. McElwee and Louis L. Strainer of Euclid; Ella M. Evans, Columbus; Robert Deller, Cincinnati; Opal M. Svendsen, Springfield, and Marjorie C. Wagner, Lima.

Picked as finalists for the Double Play game were Charlotte Easter of Greenfield; Maurice S. Etherington, Greenfield, Ind., and Bertha R. Pedery, Cleveland.

FOR COMMUNITY FUND — The Westfall High School Marching Band, commonly referred to as "The Pride of the Mustangs" will be giving a free concert Sunday, Nov. 7, at 1:30 p.m. in the parking lot at Burger Chef in Circleville. The band, under the direction of Mark Hosler, is donating their time and talent to help raise money for the Pickaway County Community Fund. They will perform many of the songs which they played during the football season, including the numbers from their award winning contest show. The Marching Mustangs have done very well at contests this year. At the West Jefferson Marching Band Invitational they received trophies for Outstanding Flag Corp, First Place in Class B; Superior Rating Overall and second runner-up. At the Fairborn Baker Marching Band Festival they received third place and at the Westland Invitational Contest they won first place in Class C, beating the band that beat them at Fairborn. This has been the band's most successful marching season to date. Representatives from the 11 agencies benefited by the Community Fund will be on hand to answer questions.

New Phone Directories Issued

New telephone directories are scheduled to be distributed this week in the Baltimore-Amanda area, General Telephone Co. of Ohio said today.

The books will go to more than 6,000 persons served by the exchanges at Amanda, Baltimore, Millersport, Pleasantville and Bremen.

William D. Anderson, Circleville customer service manager noted that customers in Amanda, Baltimore, Millersport, and Pleasantville can dial a new seven-digit number, 1-477-1681, for both the service office and repair service. He said there is no toll charge on calls to that number.

Subscribers in Bremen, which is served by the Athens district office, still must dial 318 to reach the business office and 314 for repairs, he said.

Anderson reminded customers that information on local calling and service as well as directions for calling a party-line neighbor have been included in the introductory pages. There also are instructions for direct-distance dialing.

Any customer not receiving a new directory by Nov. 17 should call the service office.

Carter Sets . . .

clear majority of the total electorate," he said.

Carter said the slimness of the victory "is fairly typical" of recent elections. "I don't feel timid or cautious or reticent about moving aggressively to carry out my commitments because I only got about 300 electoral votes," he said. "I'll be very aggressive in carrying out my commitments to the American people."

But he said, "I don't underestimate the difficulty" in accomplishing the goals he has set for his administration. "I know the American people realize that we can't do everything," said the president-elect.

And he said the success of his administration will depend on cooperation and in bringing the electorate into the governmental process. "It's going to involve a great deal of cooperation between myself as president-elect, those who will serve in the administration and the American people and the Congress," he said.

Carter said he has not yet set any list of priorities for his administration, but he vowed to do so over the next few weeks. He said he will announce the decisions publicly as they are made.

At one point, he was asked to comment on the possibility that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is planning to raise oil prices. While continuing to stress his intention to avoid interfering with the Ford administration's prerogatives, he said such a move by OPEC would be a serious blow to the U.S. economy. He said in regard to such matters that he can't act as diplomat or policymaker yet.

Carter said the authority to deal with such a problem is still Ford's and "I have none whatsoever" until January.

On the election, Carter said he didn't think the voting showed a strong, negative reaction against Ford and that it did not indicate a sharp difference in voter trust between the two men.

But he said he thought the majority of voters felt it was time for a change, and that they had wanted the Democrat's promised action on the problems of unemployment and inflation.

Asked about foreign policy, Carter said he will try to improve relations with allies and open the policymaking process to Congress and the American people.

He said he could assure allies and potential adversaries, including the Soviet Union and China, that the United States will seek peace and stable relationships. He vowed "substantial continuity" as the transition takes place.

As for his own Cabinet, Carter said he will not begin announcing the names of his top advisers until next month. But he indicated that some of the people who eventually will be named to his Cabinet will be working with him during the transition period.

State Patrol Investigates 2-Car Accident

The State Highway Patrol investigated a two-car injury accident Thursday at 5:15 p.m. on Route 23 south of Circleville.

Woodrow W. Garrett, 54, Gallipolis, was southbound on the highway in the passing lane. When he attempted to pull into the driving lane, his car hit another southbound vehicle driven by Ms. Evelyn L. Blue, 60 of Route 1.

Garrett hit the left front of Ms. Blue's vehicle with the right side of his car. Ms. Blue lost control of her vehicle, causing it to go off the roadway and overturn.

Ms. Blue was taken to Berger Hospital for treatment of injuries by Mader's Ambulance, and was transferred to Mt. Carmel Hospital, West in Columbus.

A passenger in Garrett's car, Dilley E. McCormick, 49, of Gallipolis, claimed injuries also. Garrett was cited for changing lanes without safety.

Protestant Merger Not Likely Soon

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The incoming president of the Consultation on Church Union (COCU) says it is unlikely that the 14-year effort to merge nine Protestant sects will be successful before the end of this decade.

Dr. Rachel Henderlite of Austin, Tex., said the group has had many problems since its first meeting in 1962 in determining church structure and resolving disputes on contemporary issues.

Even if these issues can be resolved at this year's meeting here, she said Thursday, there is little chance of rapid unification of the 22 million members of the churches.

Dr. Henderlite noted that some churches' governing bodies meet only once every four years and some of those met recently. For those churches, there is not enough time for unification to be voted upon and accepted before the end of the 1970s.

Expected to be confirmed as president of the COCU before the end of the three days of meetings and workshops Saturday, Dr. Henderlite was in 1965 the first woman to be ordained as a Southern Presbyterian minister.

She said a document called "A Common Theological Basis for Further Work Toward Union" is expected to be offered to delegates for a vote by Saturday.

The document will outline areas of faith, worship, sacraments and ministry, she said.

Attended by 90 delegates and nearly 100 alternates and their families, meetings were held Thursday to discuss the document, which is similar to a first draft of a plan of union introduced at a conference in 1970.

During that meeting, the draft became bogged down in a membership dispute over the structure of a united church and has not been reintroduced until now, Dr. Henderlite said.

The meetings thus far, she said, "have been primarily a matter of learning what the job is and determining where we are in the job."

Some of the points to be included in the revised document are:

- Racial and sexual discrimination would be opposed both in the church and in society at large.
- Baptism by immersion, pouring or sprinkling of water of both infants and adults would reflect the varied understandings of the membership rite.
- The united church would bear a resemblance to the uniting denominations but would be an inclusive and diverse body unlike any of the previous.
- The Apostles and Nicene creeds would be accepted but no single confession would be required for everybody.
- The Lord's Supper (communion) would be the heart of the church's worship but the sacramental nature of other rites would be recognized.

Participating churches are African Methodist Episcopal, United Presbyterian U.S.A., Presbyterian U.S., United Methodist, United Church of Christ, African Methodist Episcopal Zion, Disciples of Christ, Christian Methodist Episcopal and Episcopal.

FOR COMMUNITY FUND — The Westfall High School Marching Band, commonly referred to as "The Pride of the Mustangs" will be giving a free concert Sunday, Nov. 7, at 1:30 p.m. in the parking lot at Burger Chef in Circleville. The band, under the direction of Mark Hosler, is donating their time and talent to help raise money for the Pickaway County Community Fund. They will perform many of the songs which they played during the football season, including the numbers from their award winning contest show. The Marching Mustangs have done very well at contests this year. At the West Jefferson Marching Band Invitational they received trophies for Outstanding Flag Corp, First Place in Class B; Superior Rating Overall and second runner-up. At the Fairborn Baker Marching Band Festival they received third place and at the Westland Invitational Contest they won first place in Class C, beating the band that beat them at Fairborn. This has been the band's most successful marching season to date. Representatives from the 11 agencies benefited by the Community Fund will be on hand to answer questions.

Tallmadge Woman Wins Ohio Lottery

CLEVELAND (AP) — Milly Folk, 37, says she and her family will get a lot more use out of the seven-month-old family camper now that the bank account is being beefed up with a $250,000 Ohio lottery prize.

The Tallmadge woman, who is a central station manager for the Burns International Security Service, Inc., won the top prize in the weekly, televised Pot O'Gold game Thursday night.

The $25,000 second prize went to Chin Mei Chien "Carol" Corrao of Parma Heights.

Other Pot O'Gold winners included Frederick Roberts of Adrian, Mich., $9,900; Edna Duchon, Cleveland Heights, $8,600; Beulah Moore, Dresden, $10,200, and Brian Shott, 18, of Waterford—reported to be the youngest person ever to appear on the televised show—$11,000.

Jerry Collier of South Shore, Ky., won the top prize of $62,000 in the Double Play game.

Other Double Play winners were Charles Peters, Greenfield, Ind., $25,000, and Paul Shaffer, Vaughnsville, $11,000.

Mrs. Folk said she plans to keep on working for the present at Burns, where she has been employed for three years, although she and her husband, Van, 39, may take early retirement.

She said her husband was her supervisor as branch manager for Burns.

She said some of the winnings will go toward paying off loans on the camper and their home, and she plans to see that her three children get their education.

Mrs. Folk said she has a son by a previous marriage, Larry Wix, who is nearly 19, and two stepchildren, Mark, 15, and Marla, 13.

Contestants were announced for next week's games. The Lottery Commission said contestants for the Pot O'Gold game will include John T. McElwee and Louis L. Strainer of Euclid; Ella M. Evans, Columbus; Robert Deller, Cincinnati; Opal M. Svendsen, Springfield, and Marjorie C. Wagner, Lima.

Picked as finalists for the Double Play game were Charlotte Easter of Greenfield; Maurice S. Etherington, Greenfield, Ind., and Bertha R. Pedery, Cleveland.

New Phone Directories Issued

New telephone directories are scheduled to be distributed this week in the Baltimore-Amanda area, General Telephone Co. of Ohio said today.

The books will go to more than 6,000 persons served by the exchanges at Amanda, Baltimore, Millersport, Pleasantville and Bremen.

William D. Anderson, Circleville customer service manager noted that customers in Amanda, Baltimore, Millersport, and Pleasantville can dial a new seven-digit number, 1-477-1681, for both the service office and repair service. He said there is no toll charge on calls to that number.

Subscribers in Bremen, which is served by the Athens district office, still must dial 318 to reach the business office and 314 for repairs, he said.

Anderson reminded customers that information on local calling and service as well as directions for calling a party-line neighbor have been included in the introductory pages. There also are instructions for direct-distance dialing.

Any customer not receiving a new directory by Nov. 17 should call the service office.

clear majority of the total electorate," he said.

Carter said the slimness of the victory "is fairly typical" of recent elections. "I don't feel timid or cautious or reticent about moving aggressively to carry out my commitments because I only got about 300 electoral votes," he said.
